SUMMARY.

Field-Marshal Haig reports: Operations with limited objectives were jointly undertaken on Friday. Incessant rain fell.

Despite the great difficulties facing the Allied troops considerable progress has been made and valuable positions won.

The main operation was carried out by English and Canadian regiments on a front north of the Ypres-Roulers railway.

Northward of Bixschoote the French, attacking with great gallantry, crossed St. Jan's Beck, and captured objectives beyond.

The British have consolidated their gains and made further progress west of Passchendaele.

Sir Douglas Haig's latest despatch states that the French advanced astride the Bixschoote-Dixmude road.

They captured the villages of Aschoop, Kippe, and Merckem, besides many farms and strong points.

There was great reciprocal artillery fire on the British battle front, but no infantry action.

The number of prisoners taken since Friday exceeds 1100, of whom 300 were captured by the French.

The sweeping French victory on the Aisne over picked men of the German army is causing intense joy in France.

General von Ludendorf now admits that he gave way to French pressure.

The enemy's demoralisation and disorder enabled the French to profit by their victory and dog the enemy's footsteps.

One brilliant result is the entire relief of Soissons, which is now beyond the range of the German guns.

The latest German communique says: The French vainly endeavoured to gain a foothold on the north bank of the Oise-Aisne canal.

German newspapers state that it is impossible to minimise the importance of the French success.

British aviators brought down 284 German aeroplanes in September, and carried out 226 raids.

An Italian semi-official report states that the struggle on the Isonzo front continues bitter and undecided.

It is admitted that the situation is grave, but it is declared that the enemy is not likely to tread Italian soil for long.

The Germans regard the Austro-German attack as a coup-de-grace to force Italy to a separate peace.

French and British reinforcements are arriving on the Italian front by trains from France. Guns and munitions are also arriving.

The Italians have provided for the evacuation of the Bainsizza Plateau.

Advices received at Washington show that the Italians fully expected the Austro-German offensive.

General Cadorna has taken every measure to deal with it, and is confident of preventing the enemy gaining his objectives.

According to a semi-official despatch he is preparing for an important movement.

Three hundred thousand Germans have been added to the Austrian forces in the Isonzo Valley, between Plezzo and Toimino.

Marshal von Mackensen is directing the offensive, and Otto von Bulow is commanding the German contingent.

The Italians, says Mr. Ward Price, are faced with one of Germany's supreme efforts.

A German official report states that the Austro-Germans have captured a mountain ridge.

They are pressing on through the Julian Alps towards the Italian plain.

The Germans claim to have captured 60,000 prisoners and 450 guns.

The Italian Government has been defeated on a motion of confidence by 314 to 94. The Cabinet has resigned.

Advices from Rio de Janeiro state that Brazil has formally declared war on Germany.

The report of the inquiry into the disappearance of the steamer Matunga throws little light on the mystery.

No evidence was forthcoming to support the theory that there was an infernal machine on the steamer.

It is recommended that the finding be postponed for three months, by which time something definite might be ascertained.

The P.L.L. celebrated the anniversary of the conscription referendum by a procession and speeches in the Domain yesterday.

A motion was carried pledging the meeting to oppose any further attempt to bring in conscription.

The latest returns for the Grampians election for the House of Representatives give Mr. Jowett, the Nationalist, a lead of 1857.

Reinforcements are to be raised for the Australians Flying Corps abroad. Forty-two officers and 292 of other ranks are required.

The Victorian Premier delivered his policy speech at Creswick on Saturday evening. He denied the charges of extravagance.

The aim of the Ministry would be, he said, to encourage decentralisation and to make rural life attractive.

The trouble in connection with the steamer Burwah at Brisbane has been overcome.

The Waterside Union received advice to load the vessel, and the wharf labourers resumed work on Saturday.

Further acts of violence towards volunteer workers took place in Melbourne on Saturday.

Another contingent of wounded and invalided soldiers returned to Sydney on Saturday.

One of the men thought that if the referendum were again taken at the front 90 per cent. would vote for compulsory service.

Lieut.-Colonel Hugh R. G. Poate, who left with the first field ambulance in 1914, has arrived in Sydney from the front.

Referring to the necessity for reinforcements for the Australians, Colonel Poate says the wastage is heavy and the gaps must be filled.

The Y.M.C.A. national secretary, who has returned to Sydney, was present at the battle of Messines, and saw the Germans attack.

He formed a high appreciation, he says, of the "heroism, endurance, and magnificent fighting qualities of our men."

Some apprehension is felt about the flood on the Lower Murray at Mildura and Merbein.

A huge volume of water is travelling by way of the Edwards and Wakool Rivers, and will swell the flood in the Murray.

The flood water at Cobram is slowly receding, and the higher areas are now visible.

Owing to the flood at Strathmerton, nearly all the inhabitants, about 300, are living at the railway station.

The road and bridges between Wodonga and Albury having been washed away, a local train service is being run between the two places.

A violent volcanic eruption occurred at Mount Ngarruahoe, in the King country, New Zealand, last week.

Huge black clouds of ash, steam, and tongues of flame issued from the crater, accompanied by deep rumblings.

The railway extension from Denman to Merriwa will be opened to-day for passenger and general traffic.

A successful sports meeting and tatoo were held by the Boy Scouts' Association at the Sport Ground on Saturday.

The Lieut.-Governor presented the Leichhardt challenge shield for scoutcraft proficiency to the Summer Hill troop.

The delegates to the Country Press Conference were the guests of the Manly Council on Saturday.

It was mentioned that 1900 recruits had gone to the front from Manly.

Chaplain-Captain J. Wilson, who has returned from France, delivered a stirring address at the Lyceum Hall yesterday.

Deeds of heroism, stories of how bravely Australians can die, as well as incidents of trench life formed the main themes.

Forecast: Thunderstorms in the north-east, and showers on the south-west slopes. Fine elsewhere and cool generally. Squally south-west winds.

ECONOMY DRESS WEEK

BEGINS TO-DAY.

"How is it possible to dress with economy these Times?" is a question that will be answered with convincing proof by Farmer's this week. We have inaugurated our Economy Dress Week to demonstrate that it is indeed possible to dress on the most moderate allowance with quality and good taste.

Our Windows portray Eight Interesting Examples of Outfits—four of which we describe below. These Economy Outfits consist of practical-priced items of Dress which may be bought in the group or separately if so desired. Difficult as it is to keep prices from rising, we have by great efforts and keen buying prowess managed to keep a consistently practical level throughout the Season. We launch this Great Economy Dress Week to prove our words.

ON THE LAND.

WHEAT IN THE SOUTH.

The conditions of the wheat crop in many parts of the southern wheat belt promises a good season and a heavy yield when the crops are harvested. The area of country served by the South-Western line, from Junee to Hay, presents a good outlook at present. With a few exceptions, the crops are somewhat backward, but the rain that has fallen during the past few weeks has put the results beyond doubt. October is usually a month betokening dry conditions, when an inch or two inches of rain means the salvation of the wheat crop. This year, as with last, there has been sufficient, and more than sufficient, rain in some instances to enable the crops to make a good growth before harvest. The country between Coolamon and Narrandera will have some heavy yields of grain should conditions be favourable. If thunderstorms are frequent, followed by hot humid days, rust may affect many crops. The farmer does not want more rain, and is hopeful that the wet weather will cease. The area under crop is substantially less than it was two years ago, and on the whole less than last year. Still the yield is expected to be from 20 to 25 bushels with some crops.

At Hillston, where wheat farmers have been heroically growing wheat for a number of years, the crop prospects are excellent. One crop of Defiance is already being cut for hay, while a good yield of grain is anticipated. The completion of the railway to Lake Cudgellico will give these farmers an opportunity of carting wheat a distance of over 30 to 35 miles instead of about 70 or 80 miles. When the railway is extended to Hillston from Griffith the district should develop largely in the direction of smaller settlement. In Southern Riverina the crops have been very materially affected by the excessive rainfall. Between Wagga and Albury the areas under wheat promised well, but with the ground sodden, and continued wet weather, the result is likely to be disastrous. Further north, around Temora and Wyalong, prospects are very good, but in some centres the seed failed to germinate in the drills in some of the paddocks, and the result is that the crops are irregular. Crops are said to be well forward along the Stockinbingal line, while in the Young district they are making very heavy growth. The Burrowa district shows an increasing area under cultivation, due to railway communication with the main Southern line at Galong. Already harvesting machinery is being delivered to farmers, which is an indication that crop prospects are good. Harvesters are in good demand, but the header appears to be gaining in popularity. Wheat growers and agents are somewhat concerned over the storage of the coming crop. Many of the stacks of wheat of last year's crop have been reconditioned, and now appear to be in good order. The scarcity of galvanised iron will present a problem as to how the new wheat is to be protected both from the weather and from the mice, as the chance cannot again be taken of risking whether the pest will be as much in evidence next autumn and winter. The construction of the silos will not be completed for some time, and farmers are anxious that adequate provision should be made for the new crop.

CONDITION OF WHEAT STACKS.

MINISTER AND FARMERS.

Messrs. A. F. McNair (president), G. R. Rintoule, and W. J. Greggery, of Berrigan branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association write at length in reply to the statement made by the Minister for Agriculture, which appeared in our issue of the 17th inst., in which Mr. Grahame states that the report made by the sub-committee appointed by the Berrigan branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association, as to the condition of the wheat stacks in the various railway yards in the district, was inaccurate in several instances. In the course of their letter they say:—"We think it would be more satisfactory if Mr. Grahame instead of taking the reports of his officers would himself pay a visit to the district, when if he has any desire to be made aware of the true facts he would easily be convinced by observation that in no instance was there a single inaccuracy in our report. As to the question of the appointment of night-watchman at Berrigan, disregarding the farcical attempt made by Mr. Grahame to hold himself up as the protector of the wheatgrower, in the first place we would say that Mr. Grahame should censure his officers for making him an incorrect report, as the wage agreed to be paid and actually paid to the night-watchman was £6, and not £7, per week. It can easily be seen that if other statements made by Mr. Grahame contain the same element of exaggeration, it is full time that the matter of protecting the primary producers should be taken out of the hands of politicians and others whose interest it is to prolong the job as long as they can. As a result of the visit of inspection to the wheat yards made by six members of the Berrigan branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association (who were appointed for the purpose) on June 17, one of the inspectors of the Wheat Board was interviewed. The position was placed before him, and he wired to his superior officer urging the appointment of a night-watchman. Subsequently a telegram was received agreeing to the appointment made. The subject of remuneration was then discussed, and the inspector stated that in the neighbourhood of Sydney £3 per week was the amount that was paid for this class of work, but he stated that he appreciated that it would be impossible to obtain a man for less than £6 per week in Berrigan, especially in view of the fact that boys (on school holidays) were actually working in the yards and getting a man's wage. The inspector further stated that if the branch would make up the difference between the £3 and the sum of £6 per week, he would make representations to the Wheat Office and have a reimbursement made of the amount paid by the branch. The man appointed was a local farmer with wheat in the pool, and at the time was employed in the yard reconditioning wheat, at a wage of £1 per day. The branch in this regard paid the sum of £16 10s, being five and a half weeks at £3, and if Mr. Grahame would refer to the agents in the yard, we have every confidence in saying that, in the opinion of the latter, the appointment of a night-watchman was fully justified, and the money paid judiciously expended. Regarding Mr. Grahame's jibe, it therefore will be seen that the watchman was not nominated by a small clique of farmers and agents. We represent a branch of the Farmers and Settlers' Association of over 100 members, who own between them over 100,000 acres of wheat-growing land. Surely this fact alone should convince Mr. Grahame that the information upon which he made the statement referred to was untrustworthy, and not such as would cause a Minister of the Crown to indulge in such extravagances.

"Of course the motive is apparent. Mr. Grahame is endeavouring to convince those not in the know of the wonderful ability he has shown in handling the wheat pool. While we agree that the inauguration of the same was the only course to be adopted, still we think that the administration has been such that it has resulted in considerable loss to the wheatgrower. The words of the agents are taken before that of the wheatgrower, and Mr Grahame must not forget one thing, that he was the person who allowed the wheat agents to take possession of the wheat without their first having signed the agreement between the Government and themselves, and allowed them to operate for some months without their doing so. The wheat agents have found the pool to be the very best thing ever inaugurated for them. They are undoubtedly making more money out of the farmers' wheat than ever they did in the days when there was open competition. Further, Mr. Grahame must not forget the offer made by this branch on November 22, 1915, to handle the whole of the wheat of this district for the inclusive price of 2d per bushel, which offer and the carrying out of the work would have been supported and guaranteed in the same manner as the agreement entered into by the wheat agents. But, of course, Mr. Grahame took the wheat agents' word that the price they wanted (3¾d, subsequently reduced to 3¼d) was a fair one, and ignored the offer made."

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

On Saturday afternoon the students from the agricultural classes at the Granville and Sydney technical colleges, accompanied by the instructor, Mr. Henry Lord, visited Mr. Abram's bee farm, at Beecroft, for the practical management of bees and poultry.

Nurse Francis, V.A.D., Wellington, N.Z., lately returned from the French front, states that she and many others used Clements Tonic "somewhere in France," and they all testify to its worth as a great nerve medicine.

CHAPTER IV.

NINA.

On that same afternoon John Camberley walked quickly out of his own house, which was almost the last one in Draper-street, and along that road which, bordered first by the before-mentioned substantial houses set back in their no less substantial gardens, straggled away finally into the country beyond. At all times it was a quiet road enough, and on that April afternoon there was no traffic to be seen upon it with the exception of one lumbering cart, in which both horse and driver seemed to be sleeping soundly. Foot passengers there were none, as John passed on under the hedgerow elms whose baby leaves were unfolding in the sunlight, whilst in the branches overhead the rooks cawed softly round their nests; and in the hedge close to the path the thrushes sang. The sky, dappled with fleecy clouds, showed through the lacework of boughs, and the blueness of the sky, the budding green of the trees, the radiance of the spring sunshine, all spoke of life and hope and gladness. But this was one of John's black days: the glory of springtime only made his sore heart more sore; the very loveliness of the world about him emphasised the darkness that clouded his own life. The waves of bitterness against fate, which had so often rolled over his soul, were running mountains high now: and he had swung out of his house with an impetuous desire to walk and walk until he was dog-tired. If he could only tire himself out completely, he thought he would perhaps be able to drown remembrance at least for a time and sleep. And his sleep for a very long time now had been a very broken and uncertain quantity. The more brightly the sun shone, the more sweetly the birds sang, so much the more did John's heart swell with bitter resentment. He would have preferred a chilly and sunless day; he would have liked to silence the singing birds and the soft cawing of rooks; a grey world with no reminders of love and joy would have harmonised better with his mood than this happy world which spoke of nothing but new love and new life.

He was walking at a great pace along the raised pathway above the road, his head a little bent, his face very set and stern, his thoughts absorbed upon his own miserable past and wrecked career, when an iron gate of a garden on his left was pushed violently open, and a girl rushed out exclaiming breathlessly—

"Oh, you are a doctor, aren't you? Please come and help. Someone is very ill. It is providential that you were passing just at this very moment. I ran out to try and catch the gardener, to send him for a doctor, but he has just gone for his tea." She spoke in jerks, and John realised that she was slight and young, and that her flushed face was very pretty. But she allowed him no time for connected thought, for putting her hand on his arm she almost dragged him through the gate, saying again, with little gasps for breath, "Someone is very ill. I know you by sight, you will come and help, won't you? You are a doctor, aren't you? Please come."

"Yes, I am a doctor," John answered; "but——"

"Please don't say 'but,'" the girl interrupted, when he hung back and seemed disinclined to yield to the pressure of her hand. "I am afraid there is no time to be lost; the poor man looks so dreadfully ill. They are strangers to us, which in a way makes it all the worse. They have only motored down for the day to see our house, and he all at once fell down in the library. He looks very bad."

It all sounded to John very incoherent and puzzling, but it was obvious that somebody was ill, had been taken ill suddenly; and as all his professional instincts had not been destroyed by the bitterness of his soul, he allowed his companion to hurry him along the gravelled drive to the open door of the house. He knew the Meadow House belonged to a Mr. Ormonde and his two sisters, but this bare fact was the limit of his knowledge about them, and he realised that his pretty guide with the flushed face and troubled eyes must be one of the Ormonde sisters; and at the thought that he was actually being called in professionally a certain excitement thrilled through his veins, an excitement to which he had been a stranger for many and many a long day.

Without further explanation the girl who had summoned him in from the road led him into the house, a big old-fashioned dwelling which at once impressed him as belonging to well-to-do people, and people of good taste. There was a certain air of charm and refinement about it, a sense of home which made an appeal to the man who for so long had been lonely and living in an unhomelike house. But he had no time to dwell on these reflections. Crossing a luxuriously furnished hall, his guide pushed open a door and ushered him into a no less luxuriously furnished library where, near the bookcase, stretched out upon the soft Persian carpet, lay the inanimate form of a man. He was an elderly man, that much John observed, and he realised as well that the messenger who had fetched him was right when she said the stranger was terribly ill—sick unto death. John's professional eye noted at once. An elderly servant with a glass of water in her hand stood beside the sick man, looking rather helplessly at his grey, drawn face and closed eyes; two other agitated servants hovered aimlessly in the background; and a girl bearing a strong family resemblance to the one who had summoned him was bending over a woman who sat in a crumpled heap upon a big armchair by the window. So much the doctor's glance took in, and after that quick glance, he went straight to the sick man, and kneeling upon the carpet beside him laid a hand upon his pulse, and looked gravely and searchingly into the unconscious face. Only a very brief examination of the patient was needed; and when John lifted his head again and met Eva Ormonde's anxious eyes, his own face was very grave.

"I am afraid there is very little to be done," he said in an undertone. "The poor man has probably had attacks of this sort before, in greater or less degree. This time——" He paused, and the pause was significant enough to be understood by the girl who watched him.

"Oh!" she exclaimed in a horror-stricken whisper, "you don't mean—you can't mean——"

"I mean that there is not the ghost of a chance of saving him," John interrupted, rising to his feet and going to Eva's side, but still speaking under his breath. "I should be inclined to think it is a question of a very short time indeed, but if you know his people they ought to be sent for at once."

"Oh!" Eva exclaimed again, "but we know hardly anything about him, excepting that a house agent sent him here to see our house, which we want to let for the summer. My sister and I live here with our brother—our name is Ormonde. That poor gentleman and his wife came to-day to see the house—and my brother is out, and my sister and I were taking them over the place when all at once the poor man swayed and groaned and fell down on the floor. That is his wife." With a gesture she indicated the crumpled form in the armchair. "Will you—could you please tell her what you think about her husband?" There was a falter in the girlish voice, and John, despite all the brusqueness of manner he had acquired of late years, despite all his contempt for women, felt sorry for the tall, pretty girl whose eyes were so full of trouble for another woman's sorrow.

"If that is his wife, we must certainly tell her at once," he answered; "there is no time to be lost; and though I am afraid it will be a great shock, we can't hide the truth from the poor lady." So saying, he moved across the library to the armchair near which Brenda Ormonde stood, looking with wistful sympathy at the woman who was huddled there, her face buried in the big cushion.

"I am extremely sorry to have to tell you, madam——" John began, in formal but gentle tones, when the woman lifted her head, and, raising herself, suddenly looked full into his face, and then held out her hands with an impulsive gesture.

"Oh, John," she exclaimed; "Oh, John." For a moment the young doctor stood stock still, as though turned to stone, staring at the lovely upturned face, much as he might have stared at a ghost; and as he looked his own face hardened like a flint, and his eyes were as cold as bits of ice. If the lovely, appealing woman in the armchair had been a serpent-crowned Medusa his expression could not have shown colder repulsion and distaste.

"I did not know to whom I had the—honour of speaking," he said with frigid sarcasm. "I was passing the house quite by chance, and I was called in by Miss Ormonde. Your husband"—he paused for a second—"your husband is very seriously ill. It would not be right to mince matters, or to tell you anything but the plain truth. He has had attacks something like this before, has he not?"

"Yes"—Nina Danvers shuddered—"he has had dreadful attacks of heart. They frighten me. I feel nearly paralysed with terror now. I can't bear to see anything like that." Her voice faltered, her eyes grew more appealing, but the expression of the man beside her remained immovably stony. "Do you mean this is a worse attack than others he has had?"

"Much worse," John answered tersely. "As far as I can judge, I am afraid I cannot hold out any hope that he will even recover consciousness." Mrs. Danvers screamed faintly. "I do not consider it right to deceive you, or bolster you up with any false hopes. Your husband is dying; and I think the end is not likely to be very long delayed."

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

I HAVE extracted thousands of hopelessly decayed teeth, literally thousands. I have never once had a patient feel any pain. I guarantee absolute freedom from pain, or forfeit £5 to you. You see, my special offer is more than a promise—it's a cold cash guarantee, and in the course of long years it has never once been claimed. By my method, not only is the extraction itself quite painless, but there is no painful pricking, no swollen gums, no broken teeth to fear. If your heart be weak, it won't be affected. And my method is excellent for all ages, from 8 years to 80.

DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES.

Even abscessed teeth can be extracted by my method, quite pain free. My system of painless fillings is equally valuable and equally unfailing. I have the appliance—the only one in Sydney—which permits the drilling and filling of sensitive teeth without pain. I guarantee, in writing, all filling and plate work against fair wear and tear for five years. An examination of your teeth and estimate of expenses will cost you nothing, and involves no obligation to have work done. I will tell you candidly if treatment be necessary or not. Give me a cost-free and obligation-free call. Open till 6 p.m. Daily (Sats. included); until 9 p.m. Fridays. Half-holiday Wednesday.

DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES "DOES IT BEST,"
Orchard's Corner, George-street, opp. Railway.

ATTACK ON ITALY.

Our cablegrams this morning assure us that the Austro-German attack on Italy has for some time been anticipated by the Italian Commander-in-Chief and that experts are satisfied of his ability to repel it. The fall of the Cabinet cannot be regarded as a symptom of panic, nor by itself as a mark of the decline of an aggressive policy in the war. Reinforcements of troops and munitions are being sent constantly to Italy from the Allied armies in France. The Italian armies were almost as seriously threatened in June, 1916, but were able to drive back the Austrians, and, after their victory, to march forward to Gorizia. These grounds for confidence must be remembered when we read the German claims and the Italian admissions. They cannot alter the fact that the enemy have already gained very important successes and that the prospect for Italy is of the utmost gravity. It is now apparent that the attack is being pressed against the whole of the eastern line occupied by the Italian armies. The line is being firmly held on the Carso, but at many points it has been broken, and broken so completely that the river has been crossed and Italian territory penetrated. Preparations have been made to evacuate the Bainsizza Plateau in order that the defence may not be enveloped from the north. If this plateau goes it is quite possible that the heights which have been taken after prolonged exertions and a costly preparation will go with it. Simultaneously Italy is threatened with an invasion from the north which will occupy and devastate the Friulian Plain. Such an invasion has always been regarded as the penalty which must follow the opening of a war between Italy and Austria. To escape it Italian statesmen have endeavoured to make use of every sign of friction in Europe to gain a frontier which would give them one or both banks of the Isonzo, and to preserve their own advantage Austrian statesmen have seen that they failed. Even at the beginning of this war there were some critics who argued that the plain should be evacuated. It will be a tragic disappointment if, after escaping two years ago, the evacuation should be found necessary to-day on the morrow of two great victories. The enemy will be able to claim a triumph which no critic will diminish and which will need no embroidery from their officials. While their line has held in France they will have carried out two objects of vital importance. They will have completed the occupation of Courland by the capture of Riga and will have nullified all the results of the Italian offensive, which would be equivalent to the rehabilitation of the Austrian frontiers. Such results would be a triumph for the policy of striking at the adversary where he is weakest and at the same time a demonstration of the faulty plans of the Allies. The concentration has been a marvel of speed and complete organisation. But it is one of the contingencies which a prudent War Council would have forestalled. Winter has deprived the Germans of any further use for their troops on the Russian front, and has diminished their needs on the West. If they were ever to carry out their promise of an attack on Italy now was the time for them to make it, and for the Allies to be prepared with their reinforcements before the past victories had been gained.

The fall of the Ministry has, no doubt, been precipitated by the Italian defeats, but cannot be regarded as a consequence of them. All through this year there have been three parties in the Ministry, of which the leaders were Signor Bissolati for the Socialists, Signor Orlando for the Radicals, and Baron Sonnino, who had very little experience in Parliamentary manoeuvres, although he co-operated with two successive Prime Ministers—Signor Salandra and Signor Boselli. The dissensions in the Cabinet were expressed some months ago in several resignations, most of which were subsequently withdrawn. The immediate cause was the proclamation of a protectorate over Albania, which was issued by Baron Sonnino without consulting his colleagues, and was taken to mean that Italy was now fighting for objects other than the union of Italian-speaking peoples and the rectification of the frontier. They were intensified by the scarcity of the necessaries of life, such as wheat and sugar; by riots in the northern provinces, and by the measures taken to suppress them. At the Congress of Interventionists, held in July, the different parties in the Cabinet were represented by their supporters among the delegates. The debates showed no lack of enthusiasm for the war, but with this enthusiasm went a determination that sacrifices should be accompanied by immediate reforms at home, and should not be extended beyond the immediate needs of the Italian people. At the end of the June session, when it was seen that Signor Boselli could not keep his Cabinet together, hopes were expressed that Signor Bisolatti would succeed him. Signor Bisolatti, however, not only refused, but said that he would not take office in any future reorganisation. If the Washington messages are correct in their view there will not be any marked change of personality nor any change of policy. Baron Sonnino became Foreign Minister when Italy became definitely anti-Austrian, and would not retain office if there were any prospect of a desertion of the Entente. Signor Orlando was an associate of Signor Giolitti, and has been blamed for lack of zeal in extinguishing German interests; but he was one of the Ministers who made the war and maintained the enthusiasm of the people; his speech on the sinking of the Ancona being one of the fiercest denunciations of the German spirit uttered by any statesman. The next few days will tell us whether the Italian campaign is to be ruined and the war thereby prolonged for many months. There can be no doubt that the Allies will send assistance in every way they can. Interest and honour alike bind them to do so. Nor can there be any doubt that the Italian people will labour to free themselves from their hereditary enemies who oppressed and coerced them for so many years.

THE LIBERTY LOAN.

In a few days subscriptions for the Liberty Loan will close and the Treasurer will have immediately to think of the best way to make a further appeal. It is hoped that the public will be enabled to find at least twenty millions sterling on this occasion. If this expectation be happily fulfilled, then the Treasurer will still be forty millions short of the sum that he requires to see him through his obligations to the end of the financial year, still eight months off. The task set before him is one that is supremely difficult of accomplishment. If it is to be brought to a successful conclusion every one will need to take a hand and make a continuous sacrifice. In no other way is it possible for us to raise so large a sum in so short a time. It is true that some sections of producers and traders have done well in spite of the war. These will have large accumulations, even after the war-time profits tax has finished with them, wherewith to help the Treasurer out of his trouble. But there are other and by far larger sections of the people who have made nothing out of the war, but instead have been steady losers through it. All those whose incomes are fixed come within this class. They are making no more money than formerly, while their expenses have materially increased. The cost of living and the added taxation have hit them hard. Yet even these are expected to do their share, and must do so, if the loan campaign of the Government is to be brought to a full fruition. Then, again, there are those who have suffered through the recent industrial disturbances. Many incomes will be reduced on that account, and yet even these must do their share also, if they possibly can, to make the loan a success. No one can stand out or the Treasurer's expectations must be unfulfilled.

So far Sir John Forrest has been enabled to balance his accounts fairly satisfactorily despite the war. He has increased taxation, and in that way kept the two sides of the ledger reasonably square. The present outlook, however, is not so favourable. First, the reserve of taxation is being rapidly trenched upon, and, notwithstanding the display of ingenuity as to methods of getting at the pockets of the people, the source of supply is being rapidly dried up. It is not possible to go on adding to the income tax till it ceases to become worth a man's while making any income at all. There is a point beyond which the Treasurer cannot with safety go. Ministers are getting perilously near that point in the Federal sphere to-day. The same argument applies to war-time profits. It is all very well for the Government to attack these, but it must leave some incentive for the trader to risk his capital. He will not work gratuitously, even for a win-the-war Government. If the estimates are borne out by actual results at the close of the financial year there will be a deficit of some three millions, which should have been made up by taxation. In his financial statement the Treasurer estimated that there would be a falling-off of just under two millions in Customs receipts. In the first quarter of the year there has already been a shrinkage of more than half that sum. This looks like a deficit of over five millions at the close of the year, to say nothing of the expenditure of some seventy millions upon the war. Uneasy lies the head responsible for our public finance these days.

There are two ways and two ways only by which the Treasurer can be seen safely through his troubles. All members of the community must first of all save in a way they have never saved before, and, having done that they must be induced to put the proceeds of their saving into the series of war loans. Saving on these lines must mean reduced imports and slackened trade. Instead of the public exercising to the full their spending power they must hand over as much as possible of that spending power to the Government so as to enable it to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion. That may mean reduced Customs revenue, and the resulting deficiency may have to be met in other ways, but that cannot be helped. Saving cannot be effected without reduced consumption of imported goods. The Government to some extent is seeing to that by putting restrictions on imports, and the British Government is doing the same thing by putting restrictions on exports. But it is not sufficient for the man who finds that he cannot buy a motor car to put his money into something else. The luxury of spending for pleasure must give way to the pleasure of spending in a way that helps the great cause that all have so much at heart. Unless this frame of mind can be spread among the people the financial outlook is beclouded indeed. Of course in the last resort we may still be able to look to the Imperial Government for support, but that is precisely what we do not want to do. Even the British Exchequer is now being replenished from time to time with gold eagles from the United States, which is now the only one among the belligerents that really has money to burn. The burning process is being carried on with such energy at the moment that even the great resources of the Republic must sooner or later feel the strain. It is to be hoped that long before that point is reached the Central Powers will have been brought to a full realisation that all hope of victory for them is gone.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor, attended by General Finn, private secretary, was present at the first annual sports meeting of the Boy Scouts' Association at the Sydney Sports Ground on Saturday afternoon.

Lady Cullen, accompanied by Miss Henderson, distributed the prizes at the competitions for Working Girls and Mothers' Clubs, in connection with the Sydney University women's settlement, in the Great Hall of the University, on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Joseph Cook, Minister for the Navy, left for Tamworth last night, to attend the electoral conference there. He will return to Sydney on Tuesday, and will leave the same evening for Melbourne.

Mr. Percy Allan, chief engineer for national and local government works, who has been seriously ill for some weeks, is now convalescent.

A private cable message was received in Sydney some days ago stating that Dr. R. Scot Skirving, accompanied by his wife, is returning to Sydney. Dr. Scot Skirving has been absent on military duty for more than two years, during most of which time he has been in charge of a large military hospital in London.

Captain Frank Hurley, of Sydney, who occupied the position of official photographer to Sir Ernest Shackleton's Antarctic expedition, has, according to advices received from England, been appointed official photographer to the Australian force in France.

Members of the Country Press Association were the guests of the Manly Council on Saturday. They also visited the Warringah shire. Mr. Cook, M.P., and Mr. Fitzpatrick, Acting Treasurer, were present.

Surgeon-Colonel T. H. Fiaschi, D.S.O., V.D., after a period of service at the front—in the Mediterranean and in Italy—is now in New South Wales. He is accompanied by Mrs. Fiaschi.

THE LIBERTY LOAN.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

It has been officially stated in order to remove a misapprehension that as the Liberty Loan Bonds are inscribed stock any bank or broker would carry out a sale, the charge for the broker's commission being trifling. Any idea that the money lent to the Government is locked up for ten years is, therefore, erroneous. The Government undertakes itself to re-purchase War Saving Certificates in cases where a sufficient reason is given for requiring a return of the money. There would be no commission to pay for this, and certificate holders would receive in full what he paid for it along with simple interest of 3 per cent. When so redeemed at the expiry of the full term of three years, the rate of interest would be 4½ per cent. compound interest. A certificate purchased for 17s 6d would be valued for £1 at the end of three years. The exigencies which would constitute a valid reason for requiring a return of money in the interval for certificates would be marriage expenses, house purchase, setting up in business or unforeseen financial requirements of other kinds. These are points which the Treasurer desires intending investors in the Liberty Loan to keep before them; just as they should remember that it is a really gilt-edged security, carrying 4½ per cent. interest free of income tax, and with the solid resources of Australia behind it. Those who invest in the loan have also the satisfaction of knowing that they are helping our brave boys at the front.

LOST MATUNGA.

The report of the Superintendent of Navigation, who conducted an inquiry into the disappearance of the steamer Matunga, throws little light into the probable cause of the disappearance.

The Matunga left Sydney on July 27, and Brisbane two days later, en route for Rabaul, where she was due on August 7. A wireless message was received from a vessel, which was presumed to be the Matunga, stating she expected to arrive at Rabaul on her due date. Since then not a trace of the vessel has been found.

The Superintendent of Navigation estimated that the vessel from which the wireless message was received was about 300 miles from Rabaul. Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd., sent the Messina from Sydney on August 19 to make a thorough search for the missing vessel. After a cruise of 31 days she returned to Sydney, and the captain reported that he had not seen a sign of the Matunga. Other vessels also carried out a search without result. There was no doubt concerning the stability of the Matunga. Confidential papers of the Navy Department concerning the disappearance of the steamer show that the only thing found was a new electric light bulb of the kind used on the Matunga.

The finding of the Superintendent of Navigation was to the effect that when the vessel left Sydney she was well found and equipped, in the best of working order, and that all life-saving appliances were in good order. She left Newcastle and Brisbane in seaworthy condition. The cause of her disappearance was unknown. He recommended that the definite finding be postponed for three months, by which time something definite might be ascertained, either by hearing of the vessel's capture by the enemy or by the finding of some wreckage or other trace of the vessel. The Superintendent further states there was nothing in the holds of the ship of a dangerous or inflammable character. On deck there was a quantity of benzine safely stowed. In the magazine on the bridge there were four cases of dynamite carried safely, and so certified by inspectors in Brisbane. There was no evidence in support of the theory that an infernal machine was on the steamer.

The loss of the vessel might have been due to a seismic disturbance, as Rabaul lies near the branch of the main volcanic sewer between Japan and New Zealand. On August 6 the instrument at the Sydney Observatory showed an earthquake, probably near New Guinea, but it was difficult to conceive that a vessel of the size of the Matunga could have been destroyed without leaving a trace.

SOLDIERS' RELATIONS.

The military authorities draw attention to the necessity for relations of soldiers to notify any change of address to the officer in charge, Base Records, Melbourne, as many casualty messages are returned unclaimed.

OVERSEA MAILS.

The postal authorities intimate that there will be deliveries of English and American mails to-day and to-morrow.

COLONEL POATE.

BACK IN SYDNEY.

Lieut.-Colonel Hugh R. G. Poate, surgeon, of Sydney, has returned from the front. He was married to Miss Diacono in Egypt in March of last year, and is accompanied by his wife.

Colonel Poate left Sydney for the front with the first field ambulance on October 19, 1914, and he has seen three years' service in Egypt, Gallipoli, and France.

He states that a special feature of the medical organisation in France is the forming of surgical teams at the casualty clearing stations. Each team is composed of from eight to ten surgeons, and these teams take charge of the different stations. The stations are situated at considerable distances behind the firing-line, and as the wounded are brought in they are examined. Slight cases are sent to the base hospital by hospital train, but seriously wounded men are operated upon at the clearing station without delay. This means a great deal in the saving of life. The time when a soldier is in the hands of the doctor varies from one to 24 hours, according to how the wounded can be reached on the battlefield by the stretcher-bearers. The seriously wounded are kept at the clearing stations from four to 14 days, until they are fit to travel to the base. This early treatment has been most successful in wiping out gas gangrene, which, in the early stages of the war, was the cause of heavy mortality.

At the clearing stations they had been much troubled at night by the German aeroplanes. "In the day time," said Colonel Poate, "you would never see a German aeroplane over the Australian lines, but the British and French were continually flying over the German lines during the day. At night, however, the Germans came sneaking over the clearing stations and other such places, but no one seems to get excited about it."

The French, Dr. Poate states, are making a big effort to get their wounded men to resume their old agricultural pursuits, or to follow their former trade; and as a large percentage of the French soldiers belongs to the peasantry this work, he says, is going to prove very valuable to France in making good the ravages of war.

"Naturally," added Colonel Poate, "a wounded man looks for some easy job, and would be inclined to drive a motor car or follow some light occupation, but the French authorities endeavor to persuade him to look to something higher, and then offer to teach him how to drive, say a mechanical tractor, or even to take up farming."

Colonel Poate hopes that the authorities in Australia will follow the example of the French in this respect. In this country, he says, every disabled man with the use of artificial limbs, etc., ought to be so trained as to be able to resume his old trade or calling. The men will certainly receive their pension, but they ought not to stop at that. With proper training, they could be made to become very useful citizens, leading independent lives.

Teaching the blind a trade is another great work carried on in England and France, but in no part of his travel did Colonel Poate find such efficiency in the education and training of the blind as existed in Sydney. He has no fear of the Australian blind soldier not being properly educated and trained in this city.

Speaking on the question of reinforcements for the Australians in France, Colonel Poate said: "We will certainly require more men next spring. The wastage, despite great medical skill, splendid nursing, and the supply of every comfort, is naturally heavy, and the gaps must be filled. In the present offensive the whole of the Italian troops went into the battlefield feeling very fit—and willing to do their part. The result was, as the people already know, a great success, but they must have reinforcements to keep up this success. Australia has made a wonderful impression on the older countries, and it certainly ought to be fully maintained. Reinforcements only will do it. The French simply adore the Australians because of their great fighting powers, while the Scottish love to be linked hand in hand with them on the battlefield. Our boys have made a great name for Australia, and it is up to the manhood of this country to retain that good name."

Colonel Poate smilingly disagreed with those who claimed that marriages were being contracted in a wholesale fashion between the Australian soldiers and the English and Scottish girls.

On the question of the Australian soldier learning to speak French, he said it was "the other way about." He found that it was the French who were cultivating the desire to speak the English language, and they were even found talking Australian slang.

GERMAN ESCAPEES.

The following two Germans escaped from the Concentration camp at Holdsworthy on Saturday morning:—

Edward Carre, 35 years of age, 5ft 8in in height, fair hair, tattoo marks on body, arms, and legs, and

Heinrich Karl Seemann, 21 years of age, 5ft 5½in in height, blue eyes, fair hair, tattoo mark on right forearm, wearing moleskin trousers and black shirt.

RED TRIANGLE WORK.

A chat with Mr. J. Henry Lang, national general secretary of the Y.M.C.A in Australia, regarding his visit to the Western front, provides an illuminating insight into the far-flung work of that organisation in the different war zones. Mr. Lang was absent from Sydney for seven months. His trip was planned in order that he might get first-hand knowledge of the association's war work as a means of making it as efficient as possible.

"My visit abroad," he said, "was purely in relation to the association's war services. The public has entrusted us with a big work—an immense work, in fact—and large funds, and it was in connection with that trust that I went home. From England I went to France, and proceeded right along the British line, visiting the whole of the region of the Somme, Vimy Ridge, and Messines Ridge. I was present at the battle of Messines, and saw the Germans counter-attack, and have returned to Australia with a great appreciation of the heroism, endurance, and magnificent fighting qualities of our men. I have seen them under all conditions—at the front, on their leave in London, on Salisbury Plain, and in their other camps in England, and everywhere they have earned a wonderful name for themselves and the Commonwealth.

"In France I was tremendously impressed with the immensity and the variety of the association's activities. We are serving not only English, Scottish, Irish, and oversea troops, but also the Belgian and Portuguese armies, the Indian troops, and Chinese labour battalions, and similar battalions from South Africa. The majority of our Australian secretaries in France are working under continual shell-firing, and they now take quite as a matter of course the frequent blowing up of their dug-outs. So far we have lost only one secretary as a result of wounds, but, unfortunately, the roll of orderlies killed is not a light one."

Mr. Lang went on to speak of the big demands which are now made upon the association. "The Russian Government and military authorities," he said, "have recently requested us to serve the millions in the Russian army with the same social service that we have rendered to the British troops. The French Government, too, with an experience of our service at one or two points in its army, has asked us to open out activities immediately in no fewer than 1000 points in connection with the French forces. And there has just come a request from the Italian Government to render the same service to its troops. Our budget covering this new obligation in respect to the Allied troops up to July 1 of next year is estimated at eight millions sterling. This is apart from the service now rendered to the British army."

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE.

The Apostolic Delegate (Monsignor Cattaneo) will be formally met in Sydney to-morrow by Archbishop Kelly, visiting bishops, and other prelates, the Lord Mayor, Sir Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., and other leading citizens. He will be received at St. Mary's Cathedral at noon, after which a procession, including the clergy and officers of the Cathedral, will leave the presbytery and enter the Cathedral by the College-street doors, where the Delegate will be received by the administrator of the Cathedral (Rev. J. O'Gorman). The choir, under the baton of Mr. William Asprey, will sing "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus," and Monsignor Cattaneo will intone the "Te Deum," which will be taken up by the choir. The ceremony will close with solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, after which the Apostolic Delegate will be entertained at luncheon by Archbishop Kelly.

SLOW RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

MERRIWA, Sunday.

The railway extension from Denman to Merriwa will be opened on Monday, the 29th instant, for passenger and general traffic. The time-table provides a tri-weekly service, the trains arriving here on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and departing on Tuesdays, Thursday, and Saturdays. It has taken 6½ years to construct 51 miles of line.

VETERANS RETURN.

FROM THE FRONT.

GALLIPOLI AND FLANDERS HEROES.

Another contingent of wounded and invalided soldiers, comprising 470 for New South Wales and about 160 Queenslanders, returned to Sydney on Saturday morning. They were met by Brigadier-General Lee, State Commandant, Captain Bell, staff officer for invalided and wounded soldiers, Colonel Stokes, P.M.O., staff officers, representatives of the executive of the Red Cross Society and Penrith V.A.D. There was a large gathering of relatives at the Anzac Buffet, in the Domain, to which the New South Wales men were conveyed by motor car.

The Queenslanders went direct to the Central Railway Station, and left by special train for Brisbane, accompanied by the Gordon Men's Voluntary Aid Detachment.

Practically all the men were invalided from France, but a large percentage of them were "veterans." Many left with the first contingent from Australia. A number wore decorations won in other campaigns, especially in South Africa, extending back to long before the Boer war was thought of. The contingent included also men who have won decorations in this war—D.C.Ms. and military medals.

A number of wives of soldiers who had married in England also arrived.

AT THE BUFFET.

There were happy moments at the buffet in the Domain, where the returned soldiers met their relations. Little groups sat under the big, shady trees, and talked over old times, and the experiences of men whose lives and visions have been broadened by the realities of war. The Mosman V.A.D., with Miss Evans in charge, and St. George and St. John detachments, under Mrs. Goode, dispensed hospitality to the men. The Red Cross was also represented at the welcome to the men at the buffet.

AUSTRALIAN AND SCOTSMAN.

One of the men wore at a jaunty angle a cap which had originally belonged to a soldier in one of the Scottish regiments. The two men had occupied beds alongside each other in hospital, and, naturally, became close friends. Treatment of the Scotsman's wounds proved unavailing, and on his death-bed he left to his Australian mate his caps and his kilts as a token of regard. It was the cap of a man in the Argyle and Sutherland regiment. The incident recalls the stories—all of them borne out by a number of the returned men—of the close attachment for one another that has sprung up, not only in the line, but when off duty, between the Australians and the men belonging to the Scottish regiments. According to the men, Scotland is the most popular of the men's haunts when on leave. "If there is a big 'stunt' on," said one of the men, "and the Australians are in it there also you will find the Scotsmen. It is generally recognised that they mix together better as fighting units than perhaps any other force on the field on the Western front. The Scots are fine chaps to fight alongside of, and it is the confidence which these men and the Australians have in one another, as devil-may-care men generally, that has brought them so closely together. Like the Australians, the Scottish soldiers, as a class, are rough and ready, and are always prepared to see the light side of things, even in the blackest hour. This fine feeling existing between these two forces counts for a tremendous lot and the commanding officers seem to recognise it, for where you see the Australians in the firing line the 'Scotties' are sure to be somewhere handy." "The Australians and the Scotsmen," said another man, "not only mix well together as fighters, but they mix their drinks together, with an artistry unexcelled by other troops."

GALLIPOLI TO BULLECOURT.

Lance-corporal F. W. Mace, of Edgecliff-road, Woollahra, won his Military Medal at Pozieres. He was one of the first contingent that left Australia, and went through the campaign, from the landing at Gallipoli, until he was wounded at Bullecourt. He was wounded twice—getting some shrapnel at Lone Pine, and a gunshot wound to the hand at Bullecourt on May 3. Lance-corporal Mace was enthusiastic concerning the treatment the Australian soldiers receive in England. "The English women," he declares, "cannot seem to do enough for the Australians."

QUICK DECORATION.

In fifteen months' service Private A. J. Haylin, of North Sydney, won his Military Medal. It came to him through his services as "runner"—in other words carrying despatches—under shell-fire at Bullecourt. One of the shells sent him to hospital after he had dodged thousands of others.

THE NEED FOR MEN.

Recalling the fact Australia was about to record the first anniversary of the referendum vote on the question of conscription, one of the men gave it as his opinion that if the vote were again put to the men at the front practically 90 per cent. of them would vote for compulsory service because of the essential need for reinforcements.

A D.C.M.

Private J. Miles, a modest Englishman, not long resident in the Commonwealth, enlisted in Sydney, and, as despatch runner under fire, won his D.C.M. at Pozieres. The same adventurous duty ended in the loss of his right eye at Bullecourt. He was through the Gallipoli campaign from the landing to the evacuation, and he served in Egypt and in France, where he took part in many of the stirring operations that have made the Australians famous.

GALLIPOLI AND FRANCE.

Sergeant H. Shalders, who hails from Lyndhurst, and wears ribbons for other campaigns, including the Boer War, has seen hard fighting both in Gallipoli and on the Western front, and is back as the result of wounds. "We are undoubtedly winning," he says, "but there is a tremendous lot yet to be done before Germany's dreams are shattered. Take it from me, the boys have a rough time of it out at the front, especially in winter, and all that the people here do for them is welcomed. Gallipoli was bad enough, taking food and water conditions, but, outside of the Lone Pine engagement, it is not to be compared with France for intensity of fighting. One sees guns wheel to wheel as far as the eye can stretch sometimes, and sees and hears them belching forth huge missiles with a thunderous roar, and realises what war on the Western front means. The big guns must wear the enemy down in time."

What is the morale of the average German prisoner? the question was put to one of the men. "To put it plainly," he said, "the German prisoner usually looks pretty down and out when he reaches us, but it is easily understood. Picture a man who has been under shell-fire for days, who has had no sleep, whose nerves are all to pieces, and you see in the mind's eye the average prisoner."

WHARF-LABOURERS.

COMPULSORY CONFERENCE.

Referring last night to the announcement that a compulsory conference had been called by the President of the Federal Arbitration Court, the representative of the combined shipping companies said they were at a complete loss to know what it was all about.

"We have no dispute of any kind with the Wharf-Labourers' Union," he said. "There is plenty of labour offering for all the work we require done, and this work is apparently being done to the entire satisfaction of the shipping companies and their employees.

"Everybody knows," he added, "that the question of the deregistration of the Waterside Workers' Federation is at present sub judice. Should Mr. Justice Higgins decide to deregister the federation, its right to a compulsory conference or any other operation of the Court's machinery would be taken away. Are we to presume that this granting of a compulsory conference, at a time when there is absolutely nothing to confer about, is an indication that the Court proposes to dismiss the application for the deregistration of the federation because of its flagrant disregard of its agreements and its registration obligations?"

LIBERTY LOAN POSTER STAMPS.

It has come under notice that some persons are endeavouring to sell the Liberty Loan Poster Stamps. These are distributed free of charge by the Commonwealth Bank for use on correspondence with a view to advertising the Liberty Loan, which will close on the 2nd proximo. The bank states that they still have some of these stamps left, and that anyone desiring to use them in the manner indicated may obtain them without cost upon application.

WAR NOTES.

ENEMY PROGRESS AGAINST ITALY.

While it is reassuring to hear that General Cadorna regards the situation on the left of the Isonzo front with quiet confidence, the fact cannot be ignored that the enemy's initial success is developing rapidly, and that a really serious situation will be created if it is permitted to extend much further along its present lines. The enemy's military objective is undoubtedly the Friulian plain, and, if this should be eventually seriously threatened on a front similar to that on which the enemy has made his recent advances, the Italians would be in no small danger of being deprived of the greater portion of the gains which they have made on their most important front since they entered the war. Already the Italians admit officially that they have been forced back across their own borderline along a fairly wide front, and they make no secret of the fact that this set-back will compel them to abandon the Bainsizza plateau, which they gained in the course of their last big offensive. Here we have one military objective almost achieved by the enemy's counter-offensive. In the same way, as the enemy's progress up to the present has rendered untenable the salient, which the Italian advance along the Bainsizza plateau left in their line above Monte San Gabriele, so may uninterrupted progress in the direction in which the enemy is now moving, cause a further Italian withdrawal further south around Gorizia and along the Carso plateau. It is not, however, the first time that the enemy has attempted to drive the Italians back on to the plains and force them to sacrifice hard-won gains on this front. His last principal move in May and June of last year, which came by way of the Trentino, had a similar objective in view, and the decisive way in which General Cadorna succeeded in barring the gate which the enemy attempted to throw open on that occasion encourages the belief that this latest attempt will be met by similar effective measures on the part of the Italians.

AN AWKWARD FRONTIER.

One point which has been repeatedly made clear during Italy's participation in the war is the unsatisfactory condition of her frontier from the point of view of defence. Both in the Trentino and in the east her frontier is drawn in such a way as to give Austria every advantage. Italy has, since her declaration of war, been able partly to rectify her disabilities in this respect, and the new frontier, which her armies had constituted eastward of the Isonzo, gave Austria fewer opportunities for an invasion of Italy than the original boundary line was intended to give. The enemy's first care, after deciding on a counter-offensive, has been to seek out a portion of the front on which he could restore the advantages which the original frontier was intended to provide him with. The frontier opposite this twenty-mile front, on which he has now decided to strike, was evidently intended to be a weak spot in Italy's original defensive line, although not so palpably indefensible as that further south, near the sea coast. The Italian frontier reaches its most easterly point almost due west of Tolmino, where it suddenly bends back in a west-north-westerly direction, for a distance of about 15 miles, when it again curves round to the north-east, until it reaches a point slightly north-west of Mount Rombon. The original frontier therefore, gave Austria possession of a huge salient, jutting in towards Italy, between Mount Rombon and Tolmino. This salient contained several important mountain ridges, as well as the river obstacle of the Isonzo. The Italians have been steadily straightening out this salient, pushing the enemy from the strong defensive positions with which it provided him and decreasing the menace which it was clearly intended to offer to the Friulian plain. The enemy has chosen this front between a point below Tolmino, in the south, and Mount Rombon, in the north, for his present blow, and has met with such success that he has almost succeeded in re-establishing the advantageous position in this salient, which the original fixing of the frontier was intended to confer upon him.

THE ROADS TO THE PLAINS.

An Italian communique states that after crossing the boundary between Mount Canin and Mount Hum, in the Judrio Valley, the enemy attempted to reach the opening on to the plains. Mount Canin is at the north-eastern end of the big salient referred to in the preceding note, and the Mount Hum mentioned is down near the south-eastern end of it. The plain lies to the south-west of this salient, and the main roads or openings to the plain follow a south-westerly direction from the southern and western sides of the salient. Most of these roads converge towards the town of Udine, an important base on the Italian plain well behind the Isonzo front. The enemy is now faced with very much the same problem as that which he attempted to solve in his Trentino offensive of May and June last. Once again he has got to force a passage on a fairly broad front along roads which follow the line of the valleys and rivers, and once again the Italians will, no doubt, endeavour to confine his advance to as narrow a front as possible so as to prevent him from debouching on the plain. At present he is close to the frontier at many points and even over it at others, but it is not the first time he has trodden Italian soil and he still holds a slice of it around near the scene of his Trentino offensive of last year. The main question before the Italians, however, is not whether the enemy will temporarily occupy portion of their territory here as he occupied Asiago and Arsiero, but whether he will be able to penetrate sufficiently far into Italy at this point to force the Italians to abandon that important Austrian territory around Gorizia for which they have fought so fiercely.

ENEMY IN AUSTRALIA.

"To deal with the growing menace to the community of the enemy and his agents still at large in Australia" is the announced object of a public meeting which is to be held at the Town Hall this afternoon, commencing at 3.30 o'clock. The Lord Mayor will preside, and the speakers will be the Acting Premier, Mr. G. W. Fuller, Sir Joseph Carruthers, M.L.C., Mr. C. W. Oakes, M.L.A., Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A. (president of the Chamber of Commerce), Mr. W. T. Willington (president of the Chamber of Manufactures), Alderman E. S. Sautelle, and Mr. W. E. J. Weller (president of the Australian Anti-German League), under the auspices of which the meeting will be held.

GRAMPIANS ELECTION.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Polling in connection with the by-election for the Grampians seat in the House of Representatives, which was rendered vacant by the death of Dr. Carty Salmon, took place on Saturday. The poll was over 6000 votes lighter than at the last general election, and over 3000 lighter than at the by-election when the late Dr. Salmon defeated Mr. Macdougall by 596 votes. The returns are almost complete. The latest figures are as follow:—

Edmund Jowett (Nationalist)..	10,787
D. P. Russell (Labour)	8,930
Majority	1,857

AUSTRALIAN FLYING CORPS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Approval has been given for the raising and despatch of a special detail of 42 officers and 292 other ranks as reinforcements for the Australian Flying Corps abroad. This was announced in a military order issued on Saturday.

PACIFIC CABLE'S EARNINGS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The report of the Pacific Cable Board for the year ended March 31 last discloses a net profit of £21,776 19s 6d, sufficient to provide the usual sinking fund instalment of £17,546 for repayment of the original loan to the British Government, and leave a further surplus of £4231, which must be applied in reduction of the outstanding balance of the loan.

FORWARD AGAIN

BRITISH AND FRENCH

DIFFICULT ADVANCE

WEATHER HAMPERS ATTACK

LONDON, Oct. 28.

Sir Douglas Haig on Friday reported: The British and French armies, in co-operation, launched attacks at 5.45 this morning eastward, north-eastward, and northward of Ypres, and are making satisfactory progress.

Sir Douglas Haig's final report on Friday night stated: Operations with limited objectives were jointly undertaken. It was a fine day on Thursday with a fine drying wind, which promised improved fighting conditions, but there was a sudden change at night time. There has been heavy, almost incessant rain since an early hour this morning.

Notwithstanding the great difficulties facing the Allied troops, considerable progress has been made, and valuable positions won on the greater part of the front attacked.

The main operation was carried out by English and Canadian regiments on a front northward of the Ypres-Roulers railway. Canadian battalions advanced along the main ridge towards Passchendaele, and, passing beyond their objectives, established themselves on the rising ground southward of the village. Other Canadian battalions, with troops of English naval brigade battalions and London Territorials, made further progress in the face of strong opposition along the spurs between the main ridge and our positions eastward of Poelcapelle. They captured a number of strong points and fortified farms. Heavy fighting occurred eastward and north-eastward of Poelcapelle, in which West Lancashire and North Country troops progressed at certain points.

Subsidiary simultaneous attacks were made by English troops in the neighbourhood of the Menin-road, and by French troops northward of Bixschoote. There was fierce fighting all day long astride the Menin-road and eastward of Polderhoek, in which progress was made. A considerable number of prisoners were taken.

Northward of Bixschoote the French, attacking with great gallantry, crossed Saint Jan's Beek, which was in flood, and captured objectives beyond with a number of prisoners.

The Allies in the course of these operations took 800 prisoners.

Sir Douglas Haig's report at noon on Saturday stated: The Canadians successfully repulsed two heavy counter-attacks yesterday afternoon southward and westward of Passchendaele, taking a number of prisoners. We consolidated our gains without interference, and made further progress westward of Passchendaele, capturing 18 machine guns.

Sir Douglas Haig's report at midnight on Saturday stated: The operations of the French this morning northward of St. Jan's Beek met with continued success. The French, advancing astride the Bixschoote-Dixmude road, despite difficulties from floods and heavy ground, captured the villages of Aschoop, Kippe, and Merckem, with many farms and strong points, taking a number of prisoners.

There was great reciprocal artillery fire on the British battlefront, but no infantry action.

The number of prisoners taken since yesterday morning exceeds 1100, of whom 300 were taken by the French.

Despite the rain our aeroplanes yesterday performed valuable work, locating our attacking infantry and reporting suitable targets to our artillery. Aeroplanes, flying low, fired 10,000 rounds at the enemy's troops and transport. Two of our machines flew down the main streets of a town on a level with the house tops, firing at bodies of enemy troops. Three German aeroplanes were brought down, and one driven down. Two of ours are missing.

FRENCH REPORTS.

A French communique issued on Friday afternoon stated: We attacked at 6 o'clock in the morning between Driegrachten and Draaibank. We crossed Saint Jan's Beek and Vocerbeek shoulder-deep in water, and made important progress, despite the difficulties of the ground. We captured the village of Draaibank, Pergoed Woods, and many farms which had been organised as points d'appui. We took 100 prisoners.

A French communique issued at midnight on Friday stated: There was no enemy counter-attack in Belgium. The prisoners we took this morning exceed 200.

A French communique on Saturday afternoon stated: In Belgium our troops, continuing the action between Dreigrachten and Draaibank, captured new German trenches north of the objectives reached yesterday. Progress continues satisfactorily, despite the difficulty of the ground.

FOE ALLEGES FAILURE.

A German official report on Friday stated: The most violent artillery fire south of Houthulst Wood, as far as Hollebeke, increased to drumfire this morning. The Anglo-French night attacks failed. The enemy attacked at several points.

Strong Franco-British attacks from Bixschoote to the Roulers-Ypres railway, astride the Menin-Ypres road, broke down with sanguinary losses.

A German official report on Saturday stated: The Anglo-French effort in Flanders yesterday failed.

TWO DISTINCT ATTACKS.

The United Press Agency says that the attack began in a drizzle. The ground was most slippery on the ridges, while the lowland bogs were impassable in places. The enemy is fighting stubbornly from fortified farms, reinforced buildings, concreted blockhouses, shell craters, and "pillboxes." Airmen, despite the weather, engaged enemy artillery, transports, and marching columns behind the lines. Others used machine-guns on the troops in the front line from an altitude of a few yards.

British troops at 6.50 were seen entering the "pillboxes" on Bellevue spur, one of the most important German positions, which is two thousand yards westward of Passchendaele. Half an hour later they were seen fighting round Polderhoek Chateau, the Tommies hustling prisoners from the stronghold, the walls and upper floors of which were sandbagged yards deep, making the cellars and sub-cellars a Gibraltar of security.

The fighting resolved itself into two distinct battles. First the Anglo-French attack from Draaibank to below the Ypres-Roulers railway, and the second along a short front centring on Gheluvelt.

The correspondent emphasises the fact that there was no attack between the two battles, because in view of recent lies the Germans are almost certain to claim they checked the advance there, although none was attempted. The German artillery replied, though only moderately. The British concentration of shell fire during the night is obviously having its effect on the prisoners, who are coming in through the drizzle.

ENGLISH AND CANADIANS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs states: The attacking troops were chiefly English, though some Canadians took part. The weather gave the worst combination for an attack, namely, rain, mud, and mist. The marvel is that the troops were able to make any attack over such ground—vast miles of slime.

It is wonderful what these men will do. In telling the tale they smile grimly and say simply, "It was hell."

An airman flying low reports progress in the Gheluvelt region, which is sacred to the memory of the British who fought and died there in 1914. The airman saw Germans creeping on the Menin-road. The Canadians captured many "pillboxes" advancing over swamps towards Passchendaele slopes. Further north, beyond Poelcapelle, English battalions penetrated German machine-gun barrages, and killed the Huns in their stone forts.

The French, upon the left, advanced where all movement seemed fantastic except for amphibious animals—through swamps thigh-deep for tall men. The floods in some places were sufficiently deep to drown whole companies if they advanced. The French at one point waded through and captured a blockhouse with prisoners and machine-guns. French bombardments smashed blockhouses westward of Draaibank, whence the surviving Germans fled behind the shelter of the swamps.

The Germans put down a heavy barrage immediately the French attack began. The shells burst mostly in the flooded, impassable areas, and the Poilus jeered at these waterspouts ahead.

Mr. Philip Gibbs says that the majority of the 400 garrisoning Polderhoek Chateau were killed or taken prisoners. Those in the dugouts in Gheluvelt Wood held out after we passed, constituting a temporary menace. The fiercest battle was near the centre of the attack, we obtaining a sharply contested grip on the Bellevue slopes. The Canadians took an honorable part in the battle.

AUSTRALIANS THERE.

Mr. C. E. W. Bean, Commonwealth official correspondent, telegraphed on Friday: It is now permissible to state that the Australians made an advance in this morning's great attack side by side with the magnificent Canadian units. The Australians' share in the fighting was comparatively a minor one, being only on the extreme flank of the long Allied attack.

This morning, with dawn, another attack has gone forward on the ridge south of Passchendaele, in which the Australians had a part on the flank only. Half the night our 'planes seemed to pass over almost in one continuous stream, one after another, steadily droning past towards the German lines. As soon as the hum of one died in the distance, the hum of the following 'plane seemed to start. Later we heard them coming back after bombs had been dropped on German aerodromes.

With the dawn, the 'planes were quiet, and the guns burst out into one of those barrages by which this battle is punctuated. Behind the barrage went out the Australian and other troops. Dawn has broken after a night of intermittent rain. The weather lately has been stormy and cold with sunshine at intervals. There was heavy rain and a strong wind, but the great attack was resumed in the same calculated, methodical way which marked the first stages along the Menin-road with every prospect of success.

MACEDONIAN FRONT.

A French Eastern communique states: The British raided the village of Salman, south of Seres, taking prisoners 50 Bulgarians. In outpost fighting, the French took prisoner 12 Austrians in the region of Pogradec.

A British official report from Salonica states: We captured four villages southward of Seres, killing 60 Bulgarians, and taking 109 prisoners. We then returned to our own lines.

Advices from Washington state that Dr. Reiss, a Swiss professor, reports that the Bulgarians killed 1000 people and destroyed 10,000 houses in Monastir by continuous bombardment with incendiary shells.

MESOPOTAMIA.

An official report from Mesopotamia states that the Turks on both banks of the Tigris on October 23 approached our positions at Samarra. On our advance the Turks retreated without fighting.

BRITAIN AND HOLLAND.

Sir Walter Townley (British Minister) declares that the Dutch returns regarding the transit of sand and gravel are unreliable. The British embargo on telegrams will not be abolished until traffic has been stopped. The British Government has no thought of submitting the dispute to arbitration. Sir Walter Townley added that America will not send food to Holland until the Entente's demands are satisfied.

Cement manufacturers make a strong case showing that British cement shipped to Holland is not diverted to Germany.

An Amsterdam message says the "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" states that the agreement between Holland and Germany begins to-day. Germany is supplying coal, iron, and steel in return for foodstuffs—particularly butter and cheese.

AISNE VICTORY.

HINDENBURG'S CHALLENGE.

CRUSHING REPLY.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

The sweeping French victory over picked men of the German army is causing intense joy in France. Marshal von Hindenburg chose one of the strongest ridges in France for his challenge to battle, which resulted in demoralising defeat and in the taking of over 11,000 prisoners. It is no longer a case of falling back to take new positions and avoid losses. General von Ludendorff now admits that he gave way to French pressure. The victory was so sweeping that one correspondent describes how the Germans killed their horses by the batteries when they could not remove the guns through the barrage.

M. Marcel Hutin, the French critic, says the enemy's demoralisation and disorder led the French High Command to determine to profit by their victory and dog the enemy's footsteps to the Oise-Aisne Canal. One brilliant result is the entire relief of Soissons, which is now beyond the range of the German guns.

OFFICIAL STATEMENTS.

A French communique on Friday afternoon stated: The night was calm on the entire front north of the Aisne. The enemy only feebly replied with his artillery. We are organising captured positions on the south bank of the Oise-Aisne Canal, where the retreating enemy blew up bridges.

The Germans re-attacked north of Chaume Wood, on the right of the Meuse. After a lively fight, in which the enemy suffered serious losses, he only gained a footing in one of our advanced elements.

A French communique at midnight on Friday stated: Following up the successes on our right, north of the Aisne, we drove back the enemy from the region north of Chapelle St. Eberthe to the reservoir, capturing the village of Filain. Further east we went beyond the crest of the plateau north of Chevrigny spur. The situation elsewhere is unchanged.

We have counted 160 guns captured since last Tuesday, including several 8-inch howitzers, and many heavy guns.

Two enemy coups de main in the Champagne failed.

There was cannonading all day on the right of the Meuse.

A communique on Saturday stated: South of the Aisne there was intermittent artillery fire.

German aeroplanes dropped 20 bombs of large calibre on Dunkirk. There were 30 civilian victims.

A German official report on Friday stated: The French yesterday attacked in the Allette region. We, after a short engagement in Pinon Wood, withdrew to the northern bank of the Oise-Aisne Canal; also, in accordance with plans, withdrew behind the canal near Chavignon. We stormed positions in Chaume Wood along a width of 1200 metres, and brought back prisoners.

A later German communique stated: The French vainly endeavoured to gain a foothold on the north bank of the Oise-Aisne Canal.

THE ENEMY'S PLIGHT.

According to Amsterdam advices German war correspondents say the soldiers in the front lines at Malmaison fought for nearly three days and nights uninterruptedly, wearing gas masks, so it was almost impossible for them to take food. The French used an enormous quantity of gas, and the German reserves could not approach the fighting region, hence the German withdrawal.

The newspapers "Volk Zeitung" and "Frankfurt Zeitung" show how impossible it is to minimise the importance of the French success.

AIR FIGHTING.

BRITISH DO GOOD WORK.

Sir Douglas Haig reports: During an air raid on the night of October 24-25 another ton of bombs was dropped on Burbach works (near Saarbrucken). Three of the aeroplanes which took part in the raid are missing.

Our aeroplanes on Thursday night attacked four aerodromes. Forty-five heavy bombs were dropped. A direct hit was scored in one instance on a group of hangars. One machine has not returned.

The Admiralty reports: Naval aircraft bombed Varssenaire aerodrome and Thourout railway junction on Friday. The weather rendered observation difficult. All the machines returned.

The Military Director, General Maurice, reports that British aviators brought down 284 German aeroplanes in September, and carried out 226 raids.

AUSTRALIAN AIRMEN.

Mr. C. E. W. Bean, official correspondent with the Australian Imperial Forces, writing from the Australian Headquarters in France, says: More than one squadron of our own Australian Flying Corps is now flying on the Western front. An Australian plane has already brought down a German, and another Australian is missing, after a fight over German territory. One Australian the other day was attacked by several Germans and brought down in No Man's Land. A British officer, in a London regiment, seeing the machine fall, went out from the trenches alone with a view to attempting to rescue the pilot. For the first part of the way he managed to keep under the cover of the slight rise, but the last part was quite open. Just before he reached the machine this brave man was hit, but he went on and found the Australian lying in a shell hole wounded, but alive. The British officer crawled back with the information. Two non-commissioned officers were then sent on under the white flag, which the Germans respected. Stretcher-bearers followed, and the Australian was brought in. The British officer, fortunately, was only slightly wounded. The Australian is recovering.

LOST ZEPPELINS.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent in Paris says the log of the captured Zeppelin L 44 shows the disaster was due to the breakdown of the system of steering by wireless signals. The Zeppelins had no means of correcting the drift caused by the wind, hence the compass often was useless. Every Zeppelin is in constant touch with several wireless stations in Germany, which send out a constant stream of indications, enabling the Zeppelin to steer the correct course. On the Friday when the Zeppelins met with the disaster the wireless directives went astray or were indecipherable, and the airships lost their bearings.

Paris advices say it is definitely stated that the sixth Zeppelin, which was attacked while passing over France after the raid on England, sank in the Mediterranean. It was last seen 45 miles south of Porquerolles, flying in a south-westerly direction, and descending towards the sea. French aviators unsuccessfully searched for wreckage.

SINN FEIN.

REVOLT PLOTTED FOR NEXT EASTER.

SENSATIONAL ARRESTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.

The secret service has frustrated a second Sinn Fein rebellion, which was planned to occur next Easter, on the anniversary of last year's bloody Dublin riots. German gold was scheduled to play a part. The preliminaries were mapped out and ready to put into operation, when the secret service men stepped in and arrested "General" William Mellewes, one of the leaders of the 1916 outbreak, and Baron von Recklinghausen, apparently von Bernstorff's designee to watch over Germany's interests in Ireland after Bernstorff was ousted from the United States.

The Canadian authorities, acting on information from the secret service officers, arrested Dr. Patrick M'Carton upon his arrival at Halifax when travelling with a fraudulent seaman's passport. Dr. M'Carton enjoyed the title of "Ambassador of the Irish Republic to the United States."

It is commonly reported that German agents are busy in Ireland attempting to stir up a second outbreak. German cargo submarines have landed machine guns and ammunition in lonely inlets of the Irish Sea.

It is understood that the United States possess the official Sinn Fein report of the 1916 riots and other valuable data there anent. Mellewes, prior to the Easter Monday rebellion, spent three months in an English prison. Later he proceeded to Galway, and organised 700 volunteers. He went to the United States following the failure of the revolt.

M'Carton arrived in the United States early in 1917, a fugitive from justice. Both decided to return to Ireland. M'Carton sailed on October 17.

Von Recklinghausen is a skilful engineer. He was also associated with a group of Turks, four of whom recently were prevented from going to Europe. Documents show von Recklinghausen forwarded large sums to France for pro-German propaganda.

THE SINN FEIN CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

The Sinn Fein conference carried a resolution that Ireland present a claim for restitution and reparation from England at the peace conference. It also recommended the Irish trade unions to sever their affiliation with English unions.

The Countess Markievicz's opposition to the election of Mr. Macneil to the executive caused a scene. She declared that he had spoilt the Easter rebellion plans.

Mrs. Clarke, widow of an executed rebel, also condemned Mr. Macneil amid excitement, but his election was carried.

"IMPOSSIBLE IDEALS."

The Bishop of Meath, addressing the Meath Synod, referred to the Sinn Fein. "Is the youth of Ireland to be led to the shambles in a struggle after utterly impossible ideals?" he said. "God save Ireland from false visionary leadership, and from suspicion being contaminated by iniquitous German intrigues and German gold."

UNITED STATES.

THE LIBERTY LOAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.

There was a remarkable wave of interest in the Liberty Loan. The subscriptions are now almost £500,000,000. There is the keenest rivalry between the cities. Chicago is leading by 57 per cent.

Prominent actresses and politicians, including Sir George Reid, M.P., are auctioning bonds in the streets and stores. The maximum effort will be made to-morrow—Liberty Day—when hundreds of airmen will drop appeals broadcast in prominent centres. The United States must raise £100,000,000 daily, in order to reach £1,000,000,000.

The Standard Oil Trust has taken £10,000,000, and Mr. Rockefeller £1,000,000.

Mr. M'Adoo (Secretary to the Treasury) has made a statement, urging that bonds should be secured for Christmas presents.

It is estimated that the seized German property and money in the United States will swell the Liberty Loan by from £40,000,000 to £160,000,000.

Secret service agents discovered Germans secretly holding in the United States immense quantities of cotton, copper, oil, raw materials, accumulated for use after the war. These will be commandeered and used in America's war preparations. The seizures will seriously affect Germany's post-war trade plans.

A Washington message states that latest reports indicate that German holdings in the United States are monetarily staggering. They are now estimated at £200,000,000. It is suggested that all be used to float the next loan. It has been revealed that the German heavily invested in United States industries and lands. It is intimated that the German Emperor holds land in the United States and Canada. His investments are probably concealed under a trusteeship, as he is susceptible to seizure.

Mr. Mitchell Palmer, custodian of enemy property, is preparing to use a huge amount of the money owed to Germans in the United States to buy Liberty Bonds, and also to confiscate German-owned metals and materials.

Latest advices from Washington state that over-subscription has carried the Liberty Loan toward the £1,000,000,000 maximum.

LOAN FOR FRANCE.

The United States Treasury announces a loan of £4,000,000 for France, making the total loaned to France £158,000,000.

A POLISH ARMY.

Paderewski, the famous pianist, has submitted to the United States War Department a proposal to raise an army of 150,000 Poles in the United States.

FEDERATION OF LABOUR.

A message from Washington says that the American Federation of Labour has declined to participate in the International Conference of Workmen Socialists, proposed by the Russian Soviet.

GERMANY'S ALLIES.

U.S.A. TO SEIZE PROPERTY.

The United States Government is seizing the property of Bulgarians, Austrians, and Turks residing in America.

The United Press correspondent at Washington says the decision is most significant, as there has been no declaration of war against these Powers. They have large stores of war supplies in the United States.

The Bulgarian Ambassador announces that, despite the seizure of property, Bulgaria will not fight the Americans unless the latter attack Bulgar soil. "I am sure," he added, "that America will not confiscate the savings of 30,000 Bulgars in America."

BULGARIA "GOING SLOW."

A Rome report says the German newspapers are complaining of the selfishness of the Bulgarians, who have done no fighting for more than a year, and refuse to assist their Allies without territorial and financial compensation.

BRITAIN AND PORTUGAL.

The Press Bureau says that the President of Portugal sent a message to the King warmly acknowledging the demonstrations on the occasion of his visit to Britain. They were, he said, a sure proof of the friendship and solidarity of the two nations.

The King, in his reply, expressed deep satisfaction at the opportunity of welcoming the head of a State which was their most ancient Ally. His Majesty reciprocated the earnest desire, which had been expressed, for a continuance of the old and sincere friendship of the two peoples.

ITALY.

AUSTRO-GERMAN MENACE.

FOE'S BIG EFFORT.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

An Italian official report says: Powerful enemy forces continued their offensive on our left wing on the Julian front. We have withdrawn on our boundary line between Mount Maggiore and westward of Auzza, and provided for the evacuation of the Bainsizza Plateau.

An Italian official communique on Saturday stated: After crossing the boundary line between Mount Canin and Mount Hum, in the Jurico Valley, the enemy attempted to reach the opening on the plains.

The hostile effort on the Carso is increasing. We repulsed strong offensive thrusts.

ENEMY CLAIMS 60,000 PRISONERS.

A German official report on Saturday stated: The Austro-Germans captured the mountain ridge of Stol and Mount Matajur, pressing on through the Julian Alps towards the Italian Plain.

The prisoners now number 60,000, and the captured guns 450.

The Italian Isonzo front is shaking as far as Wippac, but the enemy is maintaining his positions on the Carso.

A German report on Sunday stated: The northern wing of the Second Italian Army is retiring. We are advancing beyond Karfreit and Rongina, and are already fighting at many places in Italian territory. The prisoners now number 30,000, of whom 700 are officers. The booty includes 300 guns.

An earlier report stated: We are rapidly progressing on the Italian front, and are taking prisoners and booty hourly.

STRUGGLE UNDECIDED.

An Italian semi-official statement says it is at present impossible to give all the details of the position at the front, where the struggle continues bitter and undecided.

The statement admits that the situation is grave, but says if the Italian troops fight as previously the enemy is not likely to tread Italian soil for long.

According to a Rome message the "Idea Nazionale's" Berne correspondent says the Germans regard the Austro-German attack as a coup de grace to force Italy to a separate peace, and break up the Entente.

FRANCO-BRITISH TROOPS.

The Italian Embassy has received official advices that Franco-British reinforcements are arriving on the Italian front via trains from France. Large quantities of guns and munitions are also arriving.

GENERAL CADORNA'S PLANS.

A Washington message says a semi-official despatch indicates that General Cadorna is preparing for an important movement.

Advices received there show that the Italians fully expected the Austro-German offensive. General Cadorna has taken every measure to deal with it, and is confident of preventing the enemy gaining his objectives.

Semi-official advices indicate that the Italian Government regards the Teuton drive as undertaken primarily for political reasons. The Government is most confident that General Cadorna will negative the enemy's aims. It is pointed out that Germany has long hesitated to aid Austria, but internal conditions there now compel a restoration of moral.

ITALIAN CRISIS.

MINISTRY DEFEATED.

A Rome message says the Italian Government was defeated on a motion of confidence by 314 to 96, despite a rousing speech by Baron Sonnino, in which he defended the Government's foreign policy. He said that Germany's policy aimed at dividing the Allies. Liberty of the seas was impossible in war-time, and was not disputed in peace-time. The Allies were willing to consider peace proposals if consonant with the Allies' ideals and objects.

The general impression was that Baron Sonnino aimed at assuring the Chamber that the Government does not desire a revengeful peace, and is not actuated by Imperialistic ambitions.

A later message announced the resignation of the Cabinet.

The "Manchester Guardian" largely attributes the Italian crisis to resentment against the extreme Nationalist propaganda, with extravagant Imperialistic ambitions, but internal misgovernment is more important, especially the failure to deal with the food situation. The crisis also marks a democratic revolt against active reactionary elements.

The Exchange Telegraph correspondent says the Government's defeat is not a pacifist victory. It is true that Baron Sonnino's aloofness from Parliament explains why the Chamber rejected his appeal, but it was not a question of departing from his war and foreign policy. It is expected that a small War Cabinet will be constituted.

A Washington report says it is believed that the resignation of the Italian Cabinet does not alter the foreign policy, or weaken the aggressive prosecution of the war. Baron Sonnino's retention of the Foreign Office is viewed optimistically. His vigorous pro-Ally speech in the Chamber has been well received in Washington.

BRAZIL AT WAR.

GERMAN GUNBOAT SEIZED.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

Advices from Rio de Janeiro state that Brazil has formally declared war on Germany.

The Chamber voted for war by 149 to 1, and the vote of the Senate was unanimous. The President immediately proclaimed a state of war with Germany, and a German gunboat lying at Bahia was seized.

The debate in the Chamber on the question of declaring war followed on the President's declaration that Germany already had inflicted war on Brazil.

The President of Brazil sent a message to Congress stating that the sinking of the Brazilian steamer Makau (6000 tons, sunk by a German submarine while carrying a valuable cargo) compelled Brazil to become a belligerent. He requested Congress to authorise the seizure of the German warship anchored at Bahia, and the internment of the crew, together with the crews of German merchantmen.

TERRIFIC ONSET.

STUBBORN ITALIAN DEFENCE.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

Mr. Ward Price, writing from the Italian Headquarters, states: The Isonzo front is on the eve of one of those immensely powerful long-planned drives with which the Austro-Germans seek to crush an adversary by a single staggering blow. A terrible crisis is coming when each side stakes all upon a throw. Millions of men will be strained to the limit of exhaustion. Italy is about to meet single-handed almost the whole Austrian army, and at least ten German divisions, with new batteries.

Heavy guns are raging all along the front and the fighting is swaying this way and that. The Italians at the first onset lost some ground, but these were only the first sparring blows. The heaviest possible fighting is going on in the Isonzo triangle, with Tolmino as the apex. The enemy is using overwhelming numbers to thrust us on the Fruilian plain.

Telegraphing later Mr. Ward Price states, 200,000 Germans have been added to the Austrian forces in the Isonzo Valley, between Plezzo and Tolmino. This vast strength is concentrated on a front of 20 miles, thereby increasing the 40 Austrian divisions facing the Italian second army by 50 per cent. There are also certainly reinforcements behind.

Marshal Mackensen is directing the offensive, and Otto von Bulow is commanding the German contingent. The Italians are faced with one of Germany's supreme efforts. With singleness of purpose and complete harmony of action the Germans carried out the task of transporting the huge military organisation which was no longer needed in Russia to the place where it can be used with the best effect. The transport has been an immense feat. The Germans uprooted whole armies and carried them across Europe.

Taking advantage of the thick fog the Germans suddenly thrust at the Italian outpost south of Monte Nero, where a German army corps attacked an Italian brigade, bursting through by sheer weight of numbers, and reached the banks of the Isonzo. Favoured by the night and rain the Germans pushed three miles up the valley and seized the town of Caporetto. They then divided. Part attacked the Italian bastion of Mount St. Ansella and the rest pushed on Robic, hoping to turn the whole line of the Italian defence. Fortunately both German efforts were held up.

Meanwhile other Germans made frontal attacks on the main Isonzo line, while attacks from German bridge-heads at Santa Maria and Santa Lucia, south of Tolmino, succeeded by a surprise.

The Italians were driven out of Globocak, one of the key positions to the main defence. It was essential to retake Globocak immediately. A brigade of Bersaglieri was sent forward with orders to recapture Globocak at all costs. They did so with bomb and bayonet, and the line was restored.

The fiercest fighting went on on the Bainsizza Plateau. Before an onslaught of greatly superior numbers the Italians fell back a mile. As it was difficult to cross the swift river over bridges constantly under fire, they took the precaution to send their heavier material to the right bank, whence the artillery is now supporting the infantry and lighter guns on Bainsizza.

The excellent quality of the Italian defence is shown by the fact that 700 prisoners were taken in counter-attacks at Bainsizza and elsewhere. On the Carso there is a tremendous bombardment, the Germans hoping to hold the Italians to their ground.

"TORTURE" GAS.

The Germans on the Italian front are using a new torture gas, which produces a terrible itching, even through the masks, the inventor hoping that the itching will force the Italians to remove their masks and die from gas shells.

General Cadorna continues with quiet confidence.

GERMANS BOASTFUL.

The "Daily Express'" correspondent at Geneva says travellers state that innumerable trains carrying German officers, soldiers, and heavy guns passed through Innsbruck for the Trentino. The soldiers said:—"We defeated the Russians. We shall defeat the Italians, and then the French and the English."

Outposts in Switzerland report that large masses of troops are moving into the southern Tyrol.

ALSACE-LORRAINE.

FRANCE'S DETERMINATION.

M. Barthou, the new Minister for Foreign Affairs, in announcing the Government's foreign policy, said that, in addition to reparation, compensation, and guarantees, France demanded Alsace-Lorraine, which was really an invaded department.

M. Barthou, in a notable passage, paraphrased Herr Kuhlmann's speech. M. Barthou said: "France cannot make any concession to Germany, regarding Alsace and Lorraine. No, never. As long as a soldier of France holds a rifle, we will defend territorial integrity handed down by our forefathers. Alsace-Lorraine is France's shield, and the symbol of her unity."

[Speaking in the Reichstag a couple of weeks ago, on the subject of the restoration to France of Alsace and Loraine, Herr Kuhlmann, said: No, never. So long as a German hand grasps a rifle the Reichland's integrity can never be the subject of negotiations.]

COST OF WAR.

BRITAIN'S EXPENDITURE.

The Parliamentary Select Committee on national expenditure has submitted an interim report. The committee recommends that the Imperial General Staff should be required to consider the financial aspect when it considers alternative proposals. All army commands should be impressed with the need for further economies, and an efficient method of checking waste should be devised. The committee recommends the Cabinet and General Staff to consider whether so large a force of troops and territorials are required for home service. The committee mentions that the cost of guarding a post by a single sentry is £850 annually. Brass shell cases and boxes worth several millions are accumulated in France. The committee strongly urges a stronger financial check at the Ministry of Munitions. The responsibility of settling the crisis in regard to munition contracts has not yet been determined, despite the fact that its expenditure is already over £1,000,000,000.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT.

Regarding the purchase of Australian wheat, which is one of the main sources of the Wheat Commission's loss, the committee says that as the quality guarantee expires at the end of the year, and storage appears to be unsatisfactory, immediate steps should be taken to manufacture wheat in Australia into a form capable of preservation, unless tonnage is available.

The gross war cost to September 30 is about £5,000,000,000 dead weight on the national debt, after deducting advances to the Allies and the Dominions, which are £1,321,000,000. Also war revenue, about £3,000,000,000.

If war expenditure and all receipts continue at the present rate each half-year, it will add roughly £1,000,000,000 gross to the debt, or £750,000,000 after deducting advances to the Allies and Dominions.

HONOURS FOR AUSTRALIANS.

Sunday's papers contain the following awards:—Distinguished Service Orders: Majors Eller and M'Lean, Lieuts. Leonard and Errey; bars to Military Crosses, Captain John Elder; Lieuts. Belonging, Christian, Ferguson, Mummery, and Neal.

FINLAND.

GERMANS MAY INVADE.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

A Copenhagen message says Scandinavian newspapers confirm the report that the Germans are preparing to land a force in Finland, expecting Finnish help against the Russians.

GULF OF RIGA.

A Russian official message says: Enemy squadrons bombarded the Ainazhi sector, Sallsmunde, and the southern coast of Kuno Island (Gulf of Riga).

THE U BOATS.

AVERAGE OF SUCCESSES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.

A Washington message says that Shipping Board statistics show that the U boats, during the last six months, sank on an average only one out of 25 ships attacked.

Dr. Anemo, a prominent Dutch thinker, has submitted to the Entente a suggestion to build 3000 huge heavily-armed submarine destroyers of the speediest kind to hunt down U boats, thus enabling submarine warfare against submarines.

Mr. Cyril Brown, telegraphing from London, says he finds no concrete basis for German optimism regarding the submarines. The Germans never believed England could be starved into submission, but hoped to cause enough economic and food hardships to rouse public opinion and force the Government to made a compromise peace. Even to-day German public opinion does not regard the U boat campaign as a failure, but regrets drawing in the United States, which has heartened the Allies. "Studying England's physiology," says Mr. Brown, "there is little to be found to justify the German conviction that submarines are an important peace factor. Their cumulative effect is not sensational."

Mr. Edison, the inventor, with a large staff of assistants, has returned, after ten weeks on the high seas, experimenting with anti-submarine devices. He endeavoured to duplicate U-boat methods in every detail. He refuses to make a statement yet.

UNITED STATES SHIPPING.

Washington advices state that the Shipping Board has permitted the use of foreign tonnage for coastal trade, filling up the gap caused by the diversion of many coastal boats to the Atlantic. It is expected that many of the ships of neutral countries that have been tied up will engage in this trade.

The Shipping Board is making efforts to obtain 500,000 shipbuilders, and is hopeful of turning out five million tons by the end of 1918. The United States will shortly turn over to Italy 100,000 tons, fully relieving the economic situation. A portion of the 100,000 tons of shipping promised to France has already been supplied.

GERMAN CRISIS.

THE CHANCELLORSHIP.

The Berlin correspondent of the "New York Times" says there have been endless caucuses of leaders of the parties at which the inter-political situation has been discussed. An immediate decision is unlikely. The majority of the parties will not attempt to diminish the Crown's prerogative to name the Chancellor and other members of the Cabinet, but suggests that the Emperor should nominate such personages whose political tendency serves as a guarantee that the majority of the Reichstag will be able to co-operate with them. There is some talk of Dr. Michaelis remaining, if the majorities obtain a concession from the Cabinet.

The candidates under the majorities' plan should be proposed by the Emperor as follows:—For Chancellorship, Dr. Solf; and Colonial Minister, Prince Max von Baden.

The latter opposes annexation, and favours a democratic programme. Prince Satzfeldt is also mentioned.

The Emperor's reception of Dr. Michaelis is most significant. The crisis possibly will end in Dr. Michaelis's favour.

A Washington message says official advices show that there is economic distress in Germany, and much discontent is evidenced. The Socialists are most active, threatening to tie up factories if the war extends into the winter. There are more frequent uprisings in several districts, including Berlin, where soldiers participated. Germany's population wants peace. The people declare it shall be concluded in November. Workmen are demanding increased pay and a more liberal apportionment of food.

Allied air raids are increasing the discontent. A raid on Essen killed 800 soldiers, who were attending a circus.

AEROPLANE FOR NEW ZEALAND.

The Nottingham Chamber of Commerce has presented New Zealand with an aeroplane costing £2000. The Duchess of Portland christened the Machine "Nottingham," in the presence of a large gathering, including the Duke of Portland, Lord Desborough, and Sir Edward Morris (Premier of Newfoundland). Miss Mackenzie attached to the aeroplane a Kiwi mascot. Sir James Mills accepted the gift on behalf of the Government. Lieut. Clutha Mackenzie accepted on behalf of Captain Brandon a specially designed medal commemorating the latter's work as New Zealand aeronautical officer.

GENERAL CABLES.

LONDON, Oct. 27.

A potato salesman has been fined £320 and sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for selling potatoes over the maximum price.

A Christiania message says that Captain Sverdrup, the Arctic explorer, following Captain Amundsen's example, has returned his German decorations.

A Paris message says that the first Red Fourragere, a newly established regimental honour, has been conferred on the Foreign Legion.

The High Commissioner (Mr. Fisher) has arranged for open-air biograph displays of Australian life and resources in Trafalgar-square by means of the new daylight screen. In the centre of the square a thousand seats are reserved for soldiers and sailors.

Mr. E. T. Doxat, for many years chairman of directors of Dalgety and Co., Ltd., whose death was recently announced, left a sum of £342,945.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council reserved judgment in the appeal from the New South Wales Prize Court re the cargo of the Remonstrant.

It is announced that the world's wheat crop will, excluding Russia, be 1,775,000,000 bushels, which is 85 per cent. of the normal crop.

MADRID, Oct. 27.

The Spanish Cabinet has resigned.

VICTORIAN POLITICS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Premier, Sir Alexander Peacock, delivered his policy speech at Creswick on Saturday evening. He said that every effort had to be made to prevent the recurrence of such strikes as had taken place. Important proposals were to be made to a conference of Commonwealth and State Ministers. Improved relations between employer and employee were hoped for. A provision was to be inserted in the Licensing Act whereby every licensee, before he could trade in honintoxicants after 6 p.m., would be required to obtain a permit from the Licensing Court.

LATE WAR NEWS.

GERMAN INTRIGUE.

SWEDISH COLLUSION.

The "New York Sun's" Washington correspondent states that Mr. Lansing possesses new important disclosures of secret German activities and Swedish-German collusion. These have been withheld from publication because Argentina, presumably under German pressure, will not consent.

It is reported that the Argentina Ambassador to the United States (Dr. Naon) has been recalled.

EX-CZAR TO GO TO ENGLAND.

A New York message says: It is reported that the ex-Czar will soon visit the United States, en route for England, where he has been guaranteed an asylum.

RECRUITING.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT'S MEETING.

Particular importance is attached to the public recruiting meeting to be held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, and to the fact that the Minister for Defence himself will speak. Senator Pearce will be accompanied by the Director-General of Recruiting, Mr. Donald Mackinnon, of Victoria, and the two speakers will lay the whole matter before the public. Senator Pearce will speak of Australia's part in the war, whilst the need of men to reinforce our army will be the subject with which Mr. Mackinnon will specially deal. Returned men in uniform will have special seats provided for them, and special permission has been granted them to wear their uniforms on this occasion. Mr. Ernest Truman, city organist, will play appropriate selections on the grand organ, between 7 and 8 o'clock, and during the evening "Skipper" Francis will sing his own composition, "Australia Will be There."

Excepting a few seats for specially invited guests, who are specially requested to present their invitations at the Druitt-street entrance to the hall, all seats will be free.

SPORTSMEN UNIT.

A meeting of ladies will be held at the Town Hall to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 4 o'clock, when several speakers will put forward the suggested scheme for obtaining the assistance of women in the forthcoming recruiting campaign throughout the State of the sportsmen's committee. Mr. J. J. Cohen (Speaker) will be one of the speakers, and the Lord Mayor of Sydney, Alderman R. D. Meagher, will occupy the chair. Prior to the opening of the meeting a programme of musical items, arranged by Professor Rancland of the Sydney University, and contributed to by Miss Mylor Burge and Mrs. Punch, as well as by Professor Rancland, will be given.

TO-DAY'S MEETINGS.

To-day's recruiting meetings are:—

Martin-place: 1 p.m., Sergt. Cross, D.C.M., Lieut. Rickwood, Lieut. Perry, Private Miller, Private Norman.

Wells and Regent streets, Redfern: 8 p.m., Sergt. Gilmour, Sergt. Townsend, Private Norman, Private Seymour.

NATIONAL BUREAU CLOSED.

The Acting Premier stated on Saturday that it has been decided to close the National Service Bureau at 25 O'Connell-street, and the premises will hereafter be occupied by the Forestry Department.

Speaking of the operations of the bureau, Mr. Fuller said it was opened on August 24 for the purpose of enrolling labour to work the commandeered State collieries. In the two months of its operation, 5314 men registered their names as being willing to assist the Government. "When to this number," said the Acting Premier, "is added the thousands of country workers who came to Sydney to assist the Government, it shows very clearly the attitude of the people of New South Wales to the recent revolt.

"The first lot of men were sent to the mines on August 26, and thereafter, until the conclusion of the strike, men were sent to various collieries as they were opened up. 450 volunteers went to Catherine Hill Bay, the majority of whom are still at work. 247 men were sent to Abermain, 308 to Aberdare, 208 to the Invincible, 164 to Oakey Park, 123 to Lithgow Valley, 53 to Muswellbrook, and similar numbers to Morton Main, Gunnedah, Richmond Main, and Pelaw Main. In addition to the foregoing, the Victorian Government sent over 500 men to work the collieries at Pelaw Main and Richmond Main.

"The Bureau also placed 300 firemen and seamen on colliers, coastal boats, and interstate boats and transports.

"Nearly 500 men were engaged through the bureau for coke and coal shovelling, while others were used in connection with the wharfs and transport service. Altogether 1585 men were given employment directly connected with coal during the time the bureau has been in operation. Seventeen separate camps were established at the various collieries to accommodate the loyal volunteers. In many instances a boycott operated on the part of local storekeepers, making it extremely difficult to secure a regular and adequate supply of food, while the difficulties of transport were also very great.

"Naturally, there were causes for individual complaints, but everything possible was done to minimise inconvenience and to secure the comfort of the men concerned.

"The Wallarah camp is still in existence, over 400 men being accommodated, while 150 men are also in camp at Dawes Point in connection with the discharge of colliers.

"Tent accommodation and camp equipment have been left where required for the loyal volunteers who wish to remain at the mines, but in the majority of cases the men have returned to their ordinary work, or have been absorbed among the regular workers.

"All the collieries have now resumed work under normal conditions, so there is no longer any necessity for the operations of the National Service Bureau. The Government is giving absolute preference of selection for inclusion in the Coal Workers' Battalion at Dawes Point to the men who have returned from the mines and other loyal volunteers. Should additional men be required, preference will be given to returned soldiers who are physically fit to undertake the work. Although the bureau has closed, men who have already registered their names for work at the Dawes Point camp will be notified as fast as practicable."

MURRAY FLOOD.

LOWER RIVER DISTRICTS THREATENED.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The chairman of the Water Commission stated on Saturday that the flooding in the Upper Murray was then being concentrated at Echuca, where the river had risen 7in during the past 24 hours, and was again at the high level of 31ft, or 2ft above the flooding stage. It was anticipated that the Goulburn flood waters and the Upper Murray flood waters would meet and raise this level much higher in the course of about two days, after which there should be a diminution if the weather remained favourable. The Water Commission was anxious about the position on the Lower Murray at Mildura and Merbein. A huge volume of water was travelling by way of the Edwards and Wakool rivers, and would, with the Murrumbidgee waters, swell the flood in the Murray at those points.

WATER RECEDING.

BERRIGAN, Sunday.

The flood water at Cobram is slowly receding, and the higher areas are now visible. A trolly service is still maintained between Strathmerton and Cobram. Owing to the line being covered in places at Strathmerton, nearly all the inhabitants, numbering about 300, are living at the railway station. At Carraweyah nearly all the people are camped at the station. Between Mywee and Tocumwal one hole washed on the railway line is estimated at 40 feet deep, and two chains wide. It is feared that the line is considerably damaged. The main Berrigan-Cobram road at Barooga has also suffered extensively, being considerably undermined.

THE BATTLEFIELD.

A CHAPLAIN'S ADDRESS.

Deeds of heroism, stories of how bravely and nobly Australians can die, and incidents of trench life, formed the theme of an address which was delivered before a crowded audience in the Lyceum Hall yesterday by Chaplain Captain J. Wilson, who returned to Australia after being many months in France.

Germany, he said, had built her nationhood by brute force and might. He did not object to the German because of his individuality, but because of his "ism," which had produced this blood-bath in Europe. The German Emperor had caused this war. Roman Catholic boys had died in France alongside of Protestant boys, and they had fought side by side. Roman Catholic chaplains and Protestant chaplains were side by side. Sectarianism broke down in the front line—(cheers)—and anything that broke down in the front line, was no good behind the lines. On coming to Australia they had read of Archbishop Mannix comparing Roman Catholic boys dying with Church of England boys, saying that Roman Catholic boys had something to hold on to, and there the Church of England broke down. He would say at once that Archbishop Mannix knew nothing about Roman Catholic and Church of England boys dying at the front. Australian boys had never yet been afraid to die. You ought to see how they can die. (Cheers.) One poor lad was badly shattered, and his end was very near. He made a sign, and believing he wanted to send a message home, he was handed a sheet of paper and pencil. And he wrote "Are we downhearted?" shook his head and died. The man who talked about our boys fearing death knew nothing about the front line.

Chaplain Wilson paid a high tribute to the work of the Australian Miners' Battalion, with whom he was stationed. These rugged and rough men had great hearts and souls. Theirs was exceedingly dangerous work, for they fought underground, and a man went to his death in darkness. But they did their work most grandly. They were the finest type of manhood God had placed on this earth. (Cheers.)

Concluding, Chaplain Wilson said he was not a recruiting agent, but he was going to say that any boy in this country who kept out of this thing, who stayed away from the war, was losing more than he could ever dream of, and he pitied him. He would not call him a coward, but he ought to go. He would rather have one hour of their glorious life than live a lifetime of some of those who lived in Australia. Look at those bulky, fleshy creatures, who lived for nothing but the races. There was going to be some straightening out before this was finished. Those men who had faced the Germans would not be afraid to speak. And if the Government would not straighten them out then they would. (Cheers.) They were going to have a chance to get the full fruits of what they had been fighting for. Some galoots were celebrating the upkeep of democracy. They forget: it was the boys in the front line who were keeping up democracy—boys who were fighting and dying were the ones. It was not the boys who defeated conscription, but the boys in the front line who were doing it. (Cheers.)

VOLCANIC ERUPTION.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sunday.

Reports from the King Country show that Mount Ngarruahoe violently erupted last week, culminating in an alarming outburst on Tuesday night. Huge black clouds of ash, steam, and tongues of flame issued from the crater, accompanied by deep rumblings. The frequent earth tremors caused much apprehension in the native settlements near the mountain base. A large area of open country is covered with a deposit of light pumice ash. Eye-witnesses say that the mountain had never before shown such unabated violence. Owing to clouds obscuring the heights for the last two or three days, it is impossible to say whether the eruption continues on the same scale.

LOYALISTS IN CAMP.

Mr. Fuller referred yesterday to complaints that have been made in connection with the Wallarah coal workers' camp at Dawes Point. "It has been stated," said the Acting Premier, "that preferential treatment is being shown to foreigners. As a matter of fact no foreigner has been allowed to go into the camp. Any man who by his speech or name gives evidence of foreign extraction is put through a rigorous cross-examination, and several foreigners, even though of neutral origin, have been immediately put out of the camp upon discovery.

"Reference has also been made to the Taronga Park volunteers who have gone into camp at Dawes Point not getting a fair deal in regard to the work available. The facts are that the men from Taronga Park were told that work was likely to be slack this week, but as the camp had been broken up arrangements were made to transfer them to Dawes Point to meet their convenience. About 50 of them took advantage of a suggestion that they should visit their homes during the week, and go into camp later on. The men who have been in the Dawes Point camp all along were kept at their usual work as far as possible, but other than this no preference of any kind has been shown. We hope to have enough work this week to keep all the men employed, and as shipping and the coal trade generally becomes normal we expect to increase the number of men in camp. In this connection preference of selection is being given to men who went to the mines as volunteers, but have now returned."

ANTI-CONSCRIPTION CELEBRATION.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the conscription referendum, and the P.L.L. Party celebrated the anniversary by a procession and speeches in the Domain. However, the P.L.L. leaders who have taken the places of the old leaders of the movement after forcing the latter out of the movement, were not present. A procession had been arranged on a big scale. Trades unionists and labor supporters generally had been asked to fall in at Eddy-avenue, and bands were engaged, but not more than 200 men, including the bandsmen, joined in the procession. Nearly the whole of those marching were men of military age. Several onlookers en route were heard to remark: "They would do more good in France." The gathering in the Domain was attended by only a few hundred people. The chief object of some of the speakers seemed to be to raise funds to help those suffering from the effects of the recent strike. The chair was occupied by Ald. Farrell, who declared they were celebrating the greatest event that ever took place in this country. Australia was the freest country in the world, and the vote given against conscription by this State, and particularly by the people of Sydney, proved to all that they were free-born Australians.

Mr. Catts, M.P., moved the following resolution: "That this gathering of Australian citizens rejoices over the magnificent victory for justice and human freedom won by the combined democratic forces of the Commonwealth in the defeat of conscription at the referendum on October 28, 1916, and in the best interests alike of our volunteer soldiers abroad, and the well-being of the whole community, we solemnly pledge ourselves to oppose, by every means within our power, any and every attempt which may hereafter be made to fasten the curse of conscription upon the people of Australia." There was a big danger that the question would shortly be again submitted to the people, and there was the danger that it might be carried. It was not to say that because Labor won last time it would win again if the question was once more submitted to the people. Labor was in a much stronger position twelve months ago than it was to-day, while its opponents were now in a stronger position, for they had profited from the last vote. With Labor not so solid to-day as twelve months ago, it behoved them to be up and doing, for there was danger ahead. Personally he was as strong an opponent of conscription to-day as he was twelve months ago, and he had good reasons for retaining our men here. The White Australia policy had to be looked to. He had no objection to volunteers, but those who volunteered ought to be sufficient to meet all demands from Australia.

Mr. Stuart Robertson, M.L.A., seconded the motion, which was supported by several other speakers, and was carried.

HOSPICE FOR THE DYING MATINEE.

The programme to be presented at the matinee at the Tivoli to-morrow afternoon in aid of the funds of the hospice for the dying, will be of a comprehensive character, as the artists will include members of companies controlled by J. C. Williamson, Ltd., J. N. Tait, Ltd., the Harry Rickards Tivoli Theatres, Ltd., and Mr. Ben J. Fuller. Signor Cesaroni, lately of the Gonsalez Grand Opera Company, will also sing. The plan is at Nicholson's and the Tivoli Theatre.

"SONS OF THE EMPIRE."

Following on the first series of Commonwealth Government films relating to the war—"Australia in Action"—we have now the second series, entitled "Sons of the Empire." These pictures, which are being shown for the benefit of the Repatriation Fund, were witnessed by large audiences on Saturday afternoon and evening at the Theatre Royal. They represent, as the programme has it, a thrilling motion picture review of Britain at war. The Australians figure prominently in them, but they deal in comprehensive fashion with the Empire's soldiers generally, and not merely with those of a particular part of the Empire. Nor is it only with soldiers that they deal; we see a good deal also of British sailors and the ships they live and move in, and we see a good deal of that other important branch of modern warfare—the air service. The pictures bring home the realities of war to us much more vividly than any pen pictures can do. First of all, we see the Australians in Bapaume, and the ruined buildings furnish an unforgettable illustration of the vandalism of the Huns. It is the abomination of desolation. Our soldiers in their letters have told us how, after the Germans had left the town and the Australians had entered it, the Bapaume Town Hall was blown up, and the spectacle of the ruined building shows how complete the destruction was. Later we see numerous British regiments, New Zealanders, and Canadians on the battlefront. Many of the views are so close and clear that the soldiers who appear in them should easily be recognised by their friends.

In connection with the first exhibition of this film an exhibition flight over the city was made by Lieutenant Stutt, of the Richmond Aviation School, on Saturday morning. "Repatriation" leaflets were dropped by him during the flight, which was witnessed by many thousands of people.

"MR. MANHATTAN."

"Mr. Manhattan," produced at the Criterion Theatre on Saturday, amidst the acclamation of spontaneous laughter, must be classified with the slightest and lightest of musical farces, the catchy melodies of which are forgotten as soon as the gaiety of the moment has evaporated. A bustling stage, due to Mr. Charles A. Wenman's efforts as producer, and a crowd of smart girls who materialised unexpectedly in rainbow tints, and faded out of sight again like the optical delusions of a magic lantern, helped "Mr. Manhattan" to a passing success dominated by the principals of the new musical-comedy combination. This was chiefly formed from the J. C. Williamson pantomime cast of last Easter.

When the curtain rises young Mr. Manhattan's New York flat has been invaded by his friend, Bobby Washington, and a party of volatile girls. However, before the real owner arrives unexpectedly, his valet, Odkin, rents the premises at £25 a week to a jealously ferocious star-tenor, whose frisky wife has been holiday-making at Trouville. There she has flirted with Odkins (passing as Manhattan), whose forged bank-notes in payment for a hotel bill bring a ludicrous French detective on the scene, and nearly lead to the incarceration of the innocent Manhattan. So much plot is vaguely alluded to that the listener suspects that quite a good French farce has been "conveyed" by the librettists, and then lost to sight in the avalanche of songs and dances composed by Howard Talbot, Philip Braham—and a lot of other people!

Louis Kimball, an American actor hitherto seen here only in spoken pieces, proved alertly amusing as Mr. Manhattan, convulsing the audience by his tearful anguish in "Things I Mustn't Do," his grief momentarily assuaged by kissing the chorus, and by a somewhat similar exhibition of misery in "When you're all dressed up and no place to go." In a small way the honours of the evening fell to Ernest Langford, who made fugitive appearances as a lanky taxi-cab driver, constantly dancing like an automaton puppet as he solemnly croaked, "I Want my Money!" Everyone enjoyed this clever fooling, to which Mr. Kimball replied in duet form, "Then You Won't Get It," and the taxi man antiphonally took up the strain with "I don't quite understand," or words to that effect, and made a solemn exit still dancing! This was encored three times; and the catchy air came up again in the girls' finale, "We Want Our Dinner," and in the girls' ragtime, "We Want Some Hats," to which saucy request Mr. Kimball again administered an imperturbable negative. The girls sang their words unisonally, as in a school action-song, and more encores were scored.

The principal feminine parts fell to Maggie Dickinson as Hope Darling, a breach-of-promise celebrity, and Carrie Moore as Lolotte, the tenor's much-involved wife. Besides playing piquantly, Miss Dickinson's delightful dancing (with Billy Hearne) in "I Like to Foxtrot with You," and her pas de seul in emerald gold-embroidered satin, were features of the evening; nor must mention be omitted of Maudie Amery's graceful solo dance. Miss Moore's vivacious aplomb as the wife helped the piece, whilst Ethel Cadman was successful in the sentimental strains provided for Evelyn, the ingenue. Arthur Stigant, the erstwhile emaciated Dame, rose to the occasion as the stout and hearty old Sir Lewis Amery, a white-whiskered solicitor with a shambling gait, and a jovial chuckle when in amorous conversation with Hope Darling. Billy Hearne, in the light-comedy role of Bobby Washington, made a hit in "Piccadilly."

On Thursday "Mr. Manhattan" will be transferred to Her Majesty's Theatre, as already notified. "L'Aiglon" will be staged at the Criterion on Saturday.

"THE BEAUTY SHOP."

Described as a one-act comedy, "The Beauty Shop" was presented at the Tivoli on Saturday before a crowded house. "The Beauty Shop" illustrates the trouble to which women go in order to retain or obtain beauty and attractiveness, so that they may secure the admiration of man. The plot centres on the machinations of Mrs. Herbert Gordon (Miss Marie Eaton) to secure by her feminine charms the love and wealth of Senator Dixon, the rough but rich pioneer of Oklahoma, from Mrs. Noel Dixon (Miss Marie King Scott), the plain—painfully plain— and homely wife of the senator. Mrs. Dixon, in order to keep the affections of her husband, enlists the aid of Mrs. Rutherford Deane (Miss Millie Engler), a smart but moneyless New York society lady, as a sort of coach to "put her wise" to the arts and wiles of society. The story then rather heartlessly shows the feminine art of the toilet, the gradual transformation of Mrs. Dixon by Miss Clarice Mulholland (Miss Vera Pearce), the head assistant of the beauty parlour, from the plain woman of about 50 into the smart and fashionable young lady of 20, more than a match for Mrs. Gordon. Portions of the dialogue are cleverly written. However, the whole of it is a discussion about the masculine sex, and it is very doubtful whether woman is sufficiently interested in man to make him so persistently the sole topic of conversation. Nevertheless the characters were so well played and the dialogue so skilfully written that it seemed quite conceivable. The principal part fell to Miss Pearce, who showed much aptitude for light comedy work. She played the part of the beauty specialist with skill, and did much towards attaining for the comedy the success that it achieved. Miss Marie Eaton looked and acted well the heartless adventuress, who calmly asks her prey's wife to give him up in order that she might possess him. Miss Marie King Scott, as the senator's wife, gave a fine portrayal, and with her unconscious droll humour was always in the picture. The other characters were well played and cast.

KENNEDY RECITALS.

The artistic treat provided by the clever Kennedy brothers at the Conservatorium on Saturday evening was worthy of a better attendance. What the audience lacked in numbers, however, was fully made up in enthusiasm. The feature of the evening was the 'cello playing of Mr. Laurie Kennedy, whose interpretation of Saint Saens' "Concerto in A Minor" revealed an artist of high musicianly feeling and temperament. His playing was characterised, moreover, by a fine breadth of tone and facile technique. Responding to an undeniable recall the 'cellist added a prelude by Van Goens. Messrs. Keith (violin) and Laurie Kennedy were associated with Miss Dorothy M'Bride (piano) in a trio by Tschaikowsky, dedicated to Rubinstein. Despite an occasional unevenness in the ensemble, the theme on the Russian folk song, The Lament, and the Cossack dance, were attractively presented. Mr. Keith Kennedy was heard with pleasure in Tartini's "Devil's Sonata," and Sarasate's "Gipsy Music," which was bracketed with the number, was played in clever and vivacious style. The violinist was warmly applauded, and added Alfred Hill's "Lullaby." Mr. Lance Kennedy is an unusually brilliant flautist, and his playing of his own composition, descriptive of the whistling and sighing of the wind, was particularly interesting. As an encore he gave Schumann's "Slumber Song," which entirely caught the fancy of the audience. Trios by Grieg and Tschaikowsky especially strengthened the programme.

Miss Dorothy M'Bride, who was the solo pianist, displayed her admirable technique in the first movement of Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata, and as an encore she gave Chopin's valse in C sharp minor, with artistic expression. Signorina Ernestine Gonsalez, the vocalist of the evening, besides her Neapolitan songs, sang the Polacca from "Mignon" with vivacious spirit, and responded to a well-merited encore with the romance, "Un Bel Di," from "Madame Butterfly." Madame Bertha Kennedy played the accompaniments, and in this way assisted in the general success of the evening.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure, which, on Friday, was centrally situated off our coast, had moved, on Saturday morning, towards the north-east, and coalesced with the one over New Zealand. It was on Saturday centred between Brisbane and Auckland. The Antarctic disturbance had, on Saturday morning, travelled about 800 miles during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. on Saturday, and was centred to the south-west of Tasmania; this disturbance extended from Adelaide across the Tasman Sea to New Zealand. An acute monsoonal depression was shown, on Saturday morning, over Western Queensland, and was responsible for cloudy conditions generally over the State. The western "high pressure" had on Saturday morning, gained one-tenth in barometric values, and was moving fairly rapidly. It should be responsible for another cool and squally southerly change. Scattered rain and thunderstorms may be expected generally, except in the south-west districts.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally S winds from Cape Borda eastwards, passing to Tasman Sea by Monday.

GERMAN WOOL IN ARGENTINA.

A correspondent informs the "Textile Mercury" that German merchants have bought up in Argentina large stocks of wool, with a view to rendering the commodity scarce in all markets, and that a sum of over £2,000,000 has already been spent in this manner. In this connection it is well to remember that the Argentine Congress intends to pass a law immediately fixing a tax upon all exportations. So far it is not known whether this tax will be applicable to purchases already made, but if the buyers have been acting under orders from German authorities with the sole view of preventing stocks being sold to buyers for the Allies then the tax should be made applicable to such purchases. Of course, it may be that the new duty is merely a kind of disguised reprisal for the submarine war, for the tax will certainly render German machinations more costly. If Argentina is forced into the war, the purchases of Germany will do it little good.

NOTES.

The Sulphide Corporation's Cockle Creek works produced 691 tons of bullion, containing 377oz of gold and 50,168oz of silver, during the week ended October 13.

The Vegetable Creek tin mine output for last week was 3½ tons of tin oxide. No. 32 hole put down by the company's boring plant was bottomed at 158ft in soft slate, which was gradually becoming harder. This was the first bore put down since the removal of the plant to Kangaroo Flat, and the mine manager concludes: "No. 32 hole has apparently bottomed flat."

A parcel of 10 tons 16cwt of picked ore from the Mammoth molybdenite mine, being part of about 40 tons of picked ore taken out of No. 1 cut by the general manager when testing the property, has been sent to Sydney for treatment, and yielded approximately 1 ton 5cwt of concentrates. The ore assayed 13.6 per cent. molybdenite, which was equivalent to £68 per ton at the present price of £5 per unit net, as paid by the Commonwealth Government.

KAMPONG KAMUNTING.

The report of the directors of the Kampong Kamunting Tin Dredging Company for the half-year ended June 30, 1917, states that the net profit for the period, after providing for mine amortisation and depreciation, amounted to £29,288, which added to the amount carried forward from December 31, 1916, shows a total at credit of profit and loss of £31,228. Of this amount two interim dividends of 1/6 each absorbed £21,000, and after transferring to reserves the sum of £7500, there remains a balance of £2728 to be carried forward to next half-year.

From the beginning of this year the company's product has been subject to a supertax imposed by the F. M. S. Government towards assisting the war-time finances of the Empire, and the smelting companies have also substantially increased their returning charges; consequently, although tin prices have maintained a very high level, the profits have not been such as they would have been with similar tin prices under prewar conditions. The policy of investing the company's reserves in local war loan securities has been continued, the total now so invested amounting to £22,750. By arrangement with the company's bankers, the funds so applied may be drawn against up to an approved limit, so that should any emergency or opportunity for other investment arise, the money can be made available without delay.

For the ensuing half-year good average yields are anticipated, and the directors have considered the question of paying an increased dividend. Commitments for spare parts, whose prices are assuming alarming proportions, amounting to over £3500, will, however mature in September, and it will not therefore be desirable to increase the dividend due during that month; but, subject to tin prices remaining at about the present level, it is hoped to be able to pay a dividend of 2/ during the month of December.

As regards working costs, the total of 3.16d per cubic yard treated is slightly in excess of previous periods. The increased price of fuel and all iron and steel work accounts for this in large measure, but a heavy debit for the renewal of the screen of No. 1 dredge has also affected the half-year's totals.
